LSP writing curriculum

At the Lighthouse Schools Partnership, we believe that writing is a vital tool for communication, creativity and critical thinking. Our writing curriculum is designed to ensure that all pupils become confident, fluent and purposeful writers who can express themselves clearly and effectively for a variety of audiences and purposes using a range of genres.

We aim for pupils to:

- Develop strong transcriptional skills (spelling and handwriting) to support fluent composition.
- Acquire a rich vocabulary.
- Develop a secure understanding of grammar and sentence structure.
- Write with increasing independence, creativity and control.
- Understand the purpose and audience of their writing and adapt their style accordingly.
- Build stamina and resilience in writing through regular practice and reflection.

Our curriculum is underpinned by the belief that writing is a craft that can be taught, practised, and refined. We ensure that pupils are exposed to high-quality models, given time to rehearse and plan, and supported to edit and improve their work.

Our writing curriculum is structured around a clear progression of skills from EYFS to Year 6, with each year group building on the knowledge and techniques taught previously. Writing is taught through a combination of discrete lessons and cross-curricular opportunities, with a strong emphasis on oral rehearsal, modelling, and purposeful outcomes.

Key features of our implementation include:

- Explicit teaching of transcription and composition: Pupils receive direct instruction in spelling, handwriting, grammar and sentence construction, alongside opportunities to apply these skills in extended writing.
- Modelled, shared, and guided writing: Teachers use the “I do, we do, you do” approach to scaffold learning and gradually release responsibility to pupils.
- Progressive genre coverage: Each year group is exposed to a range of fiction, non-fiction, and poetry genres, with increasing complexity and sophistication.
- Purposeful outcomes: Units of work are designed to culminate in a meaningful written product, such as a letter, report, story, or persuasive text, often linked to wider curriculum themes.
- Assessment for learning: Teachers use formative assessment strategies including retrieval, feedback and exit tickets, to inform next steps and ensure all pupils make progress.
- Adaptation: Writing sequences and tasks are carefully scaffolded to ensure accessibility for all learners, with adaptations made to support individual needs.

By the end of each key stage, pupils at LSP schools will:

- Write with confidence, fluency and purpose across a range of genres.
- Demonstrate secure knowledge of grammar, punctuation, and spelling appropriate to their age.
- Use writing as a tool to express ideas, explore thinking and communicate effectively.
- Reflect on and improve their writing through editing and redrafting.
- Take pride in their written work and understand its value in both academic and real-world contexts.

The impact of our writing curriculum is measured through:

- Regular formative and summative assessments.
- Moderation of writing across year groups, schools and trust.
- Pupil voice and engagement in writing tasks.
- Outcomes in national assessments at the end of EYFS and KS2
- Outcomes using our writing KPIs for all year groups.

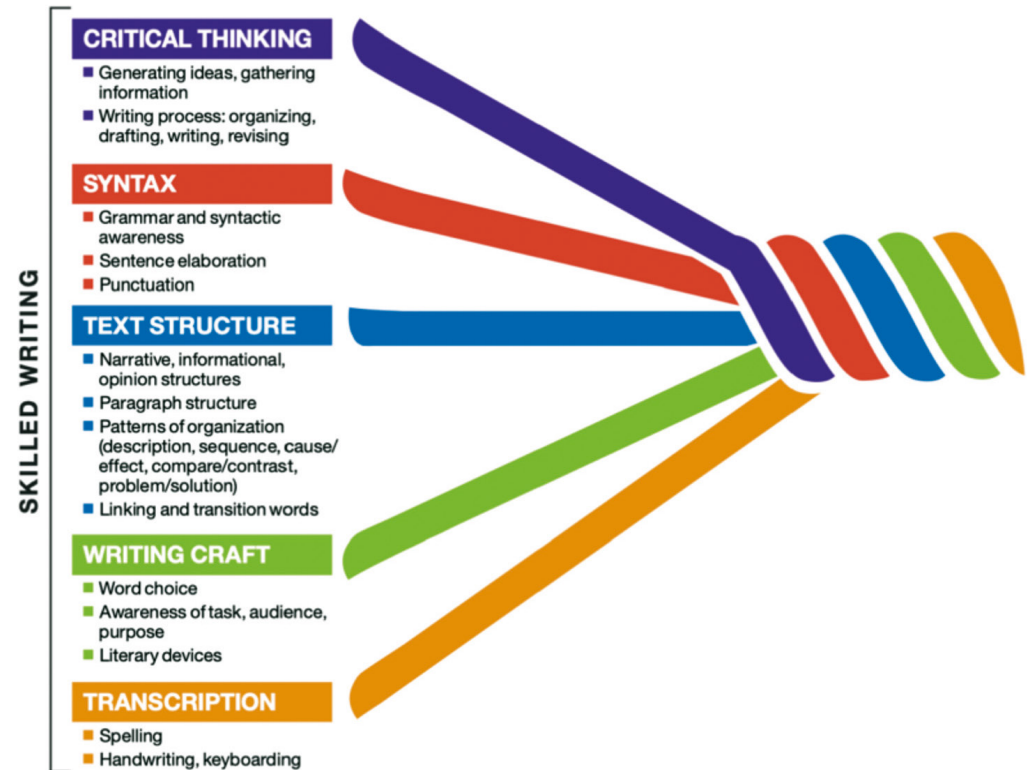

Writing over time

Writing is not just an option for young people – it is a necessity. Along with reading comprehension, writing skills is a predictor of academic success and the basic requirements for participation in life and the global economy. All students need to become proficient and flexible writers. (Graham and Perin 2007)

There are a multiplicity of skills involved in writing which makes it complex to both learn and to teach. Sedita identifies these in the Writing Rope which organises the multiple writing skills, strategies and techniques into five components that represent the elements of a comprehensive writing curriculum. Each strand will require discrete instruction to allow pupils to develop key skills with carefully planned opportunities to practice and apply them. As their expertise in skills develop they will be able to combine and use their writing skills fluently in order to become a skilled writer.

A way of looking at writing

ng are transcription and composition: we want our pupils to be in the top right quadrant with strong transcription and composition skills. However, for your youngest, novice writers there is a danger in combining these skills too early. To develop proficiency in writing, pupils need accuracy and automaticity in transcription (spelling and handwriting) and composition skills which include knowledge of the topic they are writing about. Explicit teaching of foundational skills, including spelling and handwriting, sentence construction, control of grammar and use of vocabulary, allows all pupils to write effectively. OFSTED's review into English Telling the story tells us :

Most schools do not give pupils enough teaching and practice to gain high degrees of fluency in spelling and handwriting. Teachers rarely use dictation as a tool to help pupils practise spelling and handwriting. In many schools, pupils are expected to carry out extended writing tasks before they have the required knowledge and skills.

Transcription and dictation should match their phonics attainment in the way that decodable books do to support early reading. But we also want our new writers to develop their composition skills in order that they can use and manipulate language for different audiences and purposes – and these need to be beyond their phonics skills. So oral comprehension allows them to develop these skills (in the same way that reading stories aloud supports pupils to develop comprehension skills using books beyond their decoding attainment) so that, when they can apply their transcriptional skills they have the composition skills needed to create texts that entertain and inform.

How the writing curriculum changes over time

To ensure that our English curriculum is organised to give pupils enough time to develop component writing skills we will need to adjust the time and focus of our curriculum to match the stage of writing for our pupils. Andrew Percival suggests the following emphasis during each key stage to allow for this. This structure of the curriculum allows for teachers to deliver instruction in key areas for each year group and shows that, as children master the skills of spelling and handwriting, we will then spend more time on composition. This reduces cognitive load for pupils and allows each skill to become embedded in their practice.

OFSTED found that schools are often too quick to move to asking children to write a range of genre before they have secured the skills required to do this successfully. This is particularly true for early writers in Reception and Key Stage 1:

In most schools visited, pupils at the earliest stages of learning to write are often asked to complete complex tasks, such as writing a character description, before they have the phonics knowledge to spell the words or the manual skills to form the letters easily and speedily. (OFSTED: Telling the Story 2024)

EYFS (3 - 5 years)

KS1 (5 - 7 years)

Lower KS2 (7 - 9 years)

Upper KS2 (9 - 11 years)

Our curriculum should therefore carefully expose pupils to different genres so that they are able to write for a range of different purposes and audiences but in a progression that supports the application of their writing skills in a positive and successful way.

2025 Writing Framework

The LSP writing curriculum, progression and pedagogy aligns with the content of the Writing Framework. Practice from our schools has contributed to the development of the framework. The main messages of the framework are:

Writing is complex

Writing places significant demands on pupils' working memory so it is vital to teach it in a sequenced way that helps to manage those demands.

Teach handwriting and spelling in reception

Teaching handwriting and spelling (transcription) from the reception year is crucial to ensure that these skills become automatic for children. This will free up their working memory for composition.

Sentence instruction is essential

All writing is made up of sentences. Knowledge of grammar helps pupils to control sentences and convey meaning, but it does not support their writing fluency when taught in isolation.

Spoken language is as important for writing as for reading

Pupils should compose orally while they are developing their transcription skills. This can still be valuable even when they can transcribe fluently.

Quality is more important than length

Pupils need to master the foundations of writing – handwriting, spelling and sentence construction. They should not be expected to write at length before they are ready.

The reception year is vital

The reception year builds the foundations that support pupils' writing throughout primary school and underpin their future success.

Identify pupils who need additional support

It is important to identify the pupils who need additional support with writing as early as possible, from reception onwards. Teachers can then adapt their teaching and make it accessible. This includes giving pupils more time and practice so that they can make good progress.

It will take time to tackle all the challenges in teaching writing

Schools should concentrate initially on teaching high-quality transcription and sentence instruction, while gradually developing broader writing skills.

Avoid focusing too heavily on test preparation

This can limit the development of skills and knowledge, stifling pupils' creativity and wider writing development.

Leaders must establish the culture and curriculum.

Leaders are responsible for:

- establishing a positive writing culture
- developing a well-sequenced curriculum
- ensuring that all teachers are trained to teach writing

How to use this document

The LSP writing progression brings together key documentation to support the planning and teaching of writing in our schools. These include:

- Writing National Curriculum for each year group
- English Programme of Study expectations
- LSP KPIs for writing
- Writing Teacher Assessment Frameworks for KS1 and KS2
- Exemplification materials for year groups (STA exemplification for KS1 and 2 and LSP exemplification for other year groups)
- Unlocking Letters and Sounds (ULS) Phonics, Handwriting and Spelling progressions
- Glossary of key terms

From these our English Leaders have created a termly progression to support planning. This ensures progression across and within objectives. It also shares genres and text types that each year group should be taught. The progression should be used to inform planning and support teachers to make decisions about the allocation of time for each strand within the writing curriculum.

LSP Writing Sequence in FS and KS1

The Writing Sequence – Reception and Year 1

Explore is an essential part of the writing process. It allows our youngest pupils to become familiar with books, their structure, language and themes. They can immerse themselves in a book or text. We will also start to explore grammatical structures and features. We will not, in these year groups, be focusing on genres and text types so we will not yet focus on the characteristics of different genres.

Our LSP writing units show how we can explore books and writing in a variety of ways throughout the writing journey (examples from The Goat, The Stoat and the Boat FS Unit):

Lesson Objective:	Retrieval/ Introduction	Direct Instruction (do)
To become familiar with our focus text	Introduction- Hook – Display the inside front cover on the board (it displays a boat, a moat and a castle) Let's use our detective skills to find out who this belongs to! What can you see? Who might the boat belong to? Where might the boat be going? Who might live in that castle?	 We do - White a list of things boat mast sail moat reed

In the first lesson children explore possible themes and characters in the book.

To become familiar with capital letters and full stops As the unit continues, there are further opportunities to explore through reading the book.	Retrieval –  Finger space focus- Blend and read sentences from yesterday. Can you spot any finger spaces? Why do we use finger spaces? When do we use finger spaces? Gradually reveal the book and read the title to the children. What is a stoat? Share definition with children. Revisit prosody definition (from previous unit). I am going to read the story to you today using prosody. Read the story	Display a sentence from the book. What does this sentence have at the beginning? Capital letter. Establish that we must begin every sentence with a capital letter. What does this sentence have at the end? Full stops. Establish that we must end our sentences with a punctuation mark – often a full stop to show our idea is complete. We do (transcription): Write sentence on whiteboards making sure that they use a capital letter and full stop. The fort is on a moat. Tick or fix	Continuous provision – <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Sorting picture cards using knowledge of rhyme– say the word. Which words sound similar? Children group them using sorting hoops • Rhyming strings – children use rhyming wheels where the end of the word stays the same and only the initial letter changes to investigate rhyming words. E.g. bin, pin, win, tin, fin. • Labelling the front cover. • Draw your favourite part of the story.

There are multiple opportunities to explore and share their opinions in continuous provision

Further on in the unit we use retrieval to immerse pupils in the story.

We also start to explore word and sentence level grammar.

To orally compose a sentence	Retrieval- Read the blurb to the class. Display some pages from the story. Can the children recall what happens in the story? Introduce – Draw children’s attention to the speech bubbles. Explain how they work – they come from the mouth of the character who is talking, and they tell us what the character is saying.	Dis an ch se I d su se ca fir

High Quality Modelling

We know that , for our youngest writers, high quality modelling will be essential for them to master the key skills for their year groups. This starts immediately in every unit. We follow a structure of modeling that support the gradual release of skills for pupils moving from I do (teacher modelled), We do (joint or group modelled) to You do (independent).

It is essential that this is indicated in children’s books so that it is easy to see where children have been able to apply these skills independently. A simple indication in the margin using a code such as M for modelled, T for transcriptional write and I for independent writing makes it clear where children have had more support and where they have been able to work more independently.

Lesson Objective:	Retrieval/ Introduction	Direct Instruction (I do) / Practice (We do)	Application/ Practice (You do)	Rev Ass
To become familiar with our focus text	Introduction- Hook – Display the inside front cover on the board (It displays a boat, a moat and a castle) Let's use our detective skills to find out who this belongs to! What can you see? Who might the boat belong to? Where might the boat be going? Who might live in that castle?	 We do - Whiteboards on carpet writing a list of things we can see in the image. boat mast sail moat reed fort tower I do - Model writing a sentence using the words children have written on their boards (on flipchart). 'The fort is on a moat' and 'The sail is on a boat.' Model:	Over the course of the week complete the following activities: Week 1 Small group write sessions at tables focusing on mastering finger spaces – <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Transcriptional sentence writing about the cover – Practice - The teacher will say the caption. Children to repeat and count number of words on their fingers. Children to stretch out each word and put it on their boards before writing. Write - Children to write using the same stem

In the first lesson, the teacher models writing a sentence using words that children have contributed. The focus will be on modelling letter formation, application of known phonics, finger spacing and capital letters and full stops.

To write a sentence	Revisit CEW 'the' Revisit capital letters and full stops.  Read the thought bubbles. What punctuation do you notice? Identify capital letters and full stops and re-establish their purpose.	Introduce success criteria for a sentence (capital letter, full stop, finger space). I do - 'The dog is on a log.' Then model checking against success criteria.  We do - 'The sheep is on a jeep.' Children to work with a learning partner to discuss whether they have met the success criteria.

As the unit continues, each new objective is explicitly taught to pupils. Retrieval allows additional opportunities to revisit objectives and skills. Consistent high-quality modelling allows pupils to understand the task and what they need to do to be successful.

Throughout the sequence, we give our pupils repeated opportunities to write and apply the skills they have been taught. We know that pupils will need regular opportunities to write to practice their skills. They are given opportunities to write in small, adult led groups as well as independently. All writing is matched carefully to their phonics and is focused on securing sentence construction.

Lesson Objective:	Retrieval/ Introduction	Direct Instruction (I do) / Practice (We do)	Application/ Practice (You do)	Rev Ass

Tell children why you have used a capital letter. 3) Can they find the alphabet frieze in the classroom which displays all of these?	Over the course of the week complete the following activities: Week 1 Small group write sessions at tables focusing on mastering finger spaces – <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Transcriptional sentence writing about the cover – Practice - The teacher will say the caption. Children to repeat and count number of words on their fingers. Children (spacedly) out each word and put it on their phoneme fingers before writing. Write - Children to write using the same stem sentence. 'I can see a boat.' 'I can see a moat.' 'I can see a fort.' New story ideas transcriptional sentence – Practice - The teacher will say the sentence. Children to repeat and count number of words on their fingers. Children stretch out each word and put it on their phoneme fingers before writing. Write - Children write a sentence for each image showing a new story idea e.g. 'The fox is on a box. The sheep is on a jeep.' Teacher to support children to use capital letters and full stops and review their writing against the success criteria.

Transcription is the key tool we use with our early writers. It reduces cognitive load and allows us to support them to be successful and write sentences that precisely match their phonics attainment.

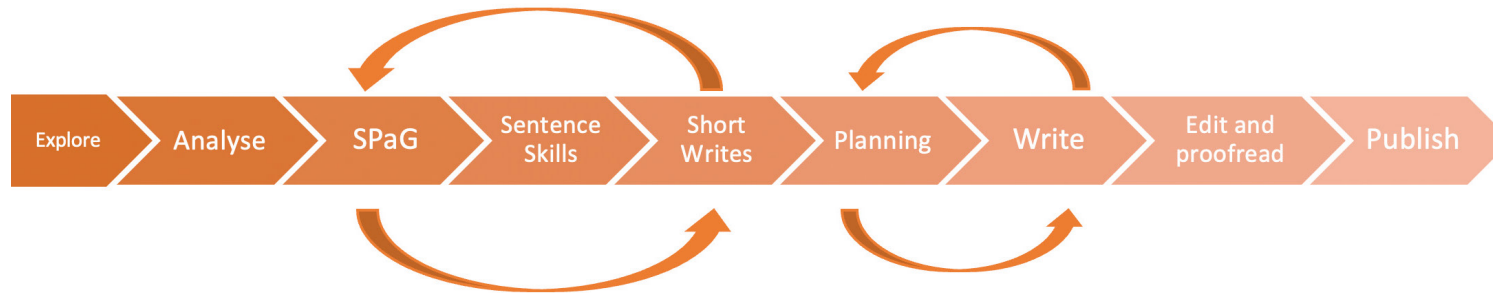

Continuous provision –

- Sorting picture cards using knowledge of rhyme – say the word. Which words sound similar? Children group them using sorting hoops
- Rhyming strings – children use rhyming wheels where the end of the word stays the same and only the initial letter changes to investigate rhyming words. E.g. bin, pin, win, tin, fin.
- Labelling the front cover.
- Draw your favourite part of the story

In continuous provision, there are opportunities to write but teachers are aware that these opportunities need to be carefully managed to ensure that key skills such as letter formation and pencil grip are practised and corrected.

LSP Writing Sequence in KS2

Explore

Explore is an essential part of the writing process. It allows teachers to ‘set the scene’ for the writing unit by introducing the new text and making links to wider themes and contexts as well as pupil’s existing knowledge e.g. making links to stories or authors they already know. Our LSP writing units show how we can explore books and writing in a variety of ways throughout the writing journey (examples from The Last Zookeeper Y5 unit) :

This sequence begins with exploration of other texts that children may already know by the author Aaron Becker in order to make links to prior knowledge. It also explores the wider context of the book, sharing the work of conservationist Jane Goodall. In this lesson, pupils produce written responses but this may not always be the case in an ‘explore’ lesson.

Lesson Objective:	Retrieval/ Introduction	Direct Instruction	Application/ Practice	Review/ Assessment
Lesson 1: LO: To explore and engage with a new text.	 Do the children know any other Aaron Becker books? Watch the trailer – link in notes. Show the first page and quote: ‘Only if we understand, can we care. Only if we care, will we help. Only if we help, shall we be saved.’ – Jane Goodall Facilitate discussion about what this mean.  What do you think this mean? Talk about Jane Goodall and watch YouTube clip link in notes.	Share new text with children. Stop and discuss as you are going through. Teacher info: The Earth has flooded. The only signs of humankind are the waterlogged structures they left behind. Peeking out from the deluge are the remnants of a zoo, home to rare and endangered animals, survivors of long neglect. Tender-hearted NOA is a construction robot who’s found new purpose as the caretaker of the zoo’s beleaguered inhabitants. Bracing for the next storm, NOA builds an ark from the wreckage in search of new land, only to discover something even more profound. With boundless compassion and sweeping scenes of sea and sky punctuated by detailed wordless panels to pore over, Caldecott Honor-winning creator Aaron Becker delivers a timely and concrete message about the rewards of caring in even the most difficult of times that is sure to inspire the dreamers among us Brief discussion on structure of the story. Highlight that it starts with a problem. I do: model one like, dislike, puzzle and connection. Ensure to use conjunctions to justify opinions / reasons and ? for questions. I like the contrast between a futuristic main character and a setting which seems historical. I found the story difficult to understand as there weren’t any words.	Does this story remind you of anything? We do: using post its notes collect the class’s likes, dislike, puzzles and connections ensuring children justify their opinions with conjunctions (5-10 minutes) You do: Independently children complete the book talk grid.	 Cold call for responses and examples.

Analyse

LIGHTHOUSE
SCHOOLS PARTNERSHIP

Through analysing texts or WAGOLLS ('what a good one looks like), children understand what a finished example looks like and helps them to understand what they are aiming for in their own work. For example, they may be working towards completing a whole narrative and using a high quality book as an example of this. It may be that the analyse step in the sequence involves discussing and unpicking a high quality, carefully planned WAGOLL written by the teacher which exemplifies the application of specific SPaG skills to be taught in the sequence. Pupils need to understand what they are working towards in their own writing.

Lesson 2 – LO: To sequence the events of a narrative	 What can you remember? What did you like dislike? What connections did we make? Re-read story and recap story mountain structure. Discuss usual structures of a story and whether this story fits.  Show the 7 plot types and ask the children which type they think this story is. Overcoming the monster Rags to riches Quest Voyage and return Comedy Tragedy Rebirth	This story could be quest but the Noa links makes it work best as a rebirth. Teacher info - Much like spring, this plot is all about renewal, transformation, and new beginnings. The hero of a rebirth plot is often misguided, and changes for the better under the guidance of another, wiser character, or because they are inspired by love, family, or the greater good to become a better person. The rebirth plot is seen in The Lion King, The Grinch Who Stole Christmas, A Christmas Carol, Shawshank Redemption, Despicable Me, and The Secret Garden. Unlike other stories, this story starts after what feels like a main event (problem) has already happened and the story is about overcoming further problems by working together for the greater good.  Retrieval when have you seen a story map before? Why are they useful? We do: Sequence images from the story – Teacher CFU then children stick on A3 in correct order. I do: Model retelling and creating a story map using the images and appropriate story telling language – adverbial and conjunctions (see example in resources and on slides) This should be modelled in real time!	You do: Children use the images and word bank to create their own story map on A3 – this will be a working document and does not need to be stuck into books. Children then retell the story to themselves and partners to increase familiarity.

The purpose of this lesson is to continue to explore the text and begin to analyse its structure. This will help to increase children's familiarity with the text. Teachers analyse the structure of the story with children in order to develop a story mountain. Children work to internalise the structure of the story through sequencing and orally retelling the story with the support of a story mountain.

SPaG

Discrete teaching of grammar skills is an important part of the build up towards a piece of writing. 'Do now' retrieval tasks to activate pupils' prior knowledge relating to the SPaG skill being taught will support their new learning as well as allowing the teacher to gauge pupils' current understanding. Teaching the skill in the context of the text or writing genre will support pupils when they come to apply this to short or long writes.

Lesson 3 – LO: to practise using prepositional phrases	 How many prepositions can you write in 1 minute? Use this to create a word bank – ensure that these ones are included: From Through Beneath Across Above Beyond Under	Recap prepositions, using video on slide. I do: Using a picture from the text, model using the list of prepositions to build adverbials of place to improve a simple sentence. Remind children that the comma is used to separate the phrase from the main clause if it comes at the start of the sentence. Examples in notes but model in real time. Simple: Noah watched the water rise. Complex: From the edge of the jetty, Noa watched the water rise. Beneath the shelter of the canopy, Noa watched the water rise.	 We do: Ask children to restructure the sentence below moving the preposition to the front. Noa watched the water rise, through the pouring rain. Then give children a simple sentence and ask them to add an adverbial phrase to the beginning. The lights shone. e.g. Through the rain, the lights shone. Then give children a prepositional phrase and ask them to add a simple sentence. Underneath him, You do: Independent task in books. Using the list of prepositions and a new picture child compose complex sentences including prepositional phrases. e.g.	Use the we do/you do activity to gauge understanding and inform guided group.

Children are given a 'do now' retrieval task to allow teachers to gauge their current understanding of the skill being taught.

The purpose of this lesson is to discretely practise a specific SPaG skill, which will be applied later in the teaching sequence. Ideally, this SPaG skill will be a feature of the WAGOLL written by the teacher so that children see this applied in context.

Sentence skills

LIGHTHOUSE

Practising applying SPaG skills at sentence level provides opportunities for repeated practice. During this part of the sequence, it is important to carefully vary the way in which the skill is applied and ensure a gradual release of responsibility, working towards pupils applying the skill independently. This part of the sequence is key for picking up on misconceptions and correcting these. Transcription is still a very useful tool in KS2 and building in opportunities for dictated sentences during sentence level work is a great way to assess children’s understanding of how to apply certain spelling, punctuation and grammar skills.

Lesson 4- LO: to practice complex sentences including relative clauses. If the school is following the LSP progression document, relative clauses will have been covered in the autumn term. If not, potentially add another lesson here.	 Retrieval – identify and correctly punctuate the relative clauses on slides. Challenge – write your own ambitious sentence about this picture including a relative clause	Remind children of the definition of a relative clause. I do - Using picture stimulus to model turning simple sentences into complex sentences by adding a relative clause. Discuss multiple option to increase complexity and what value is added by adding the extra information. Discuss positioning of relative clause – embedded / at the end and correct punctuation. – focus on modelling the pronoun that as who and which were covered in the Autumn term writing sequence. Simple sentence: The water lapped the rocks. Complex: The water, that continued to rise, lapped the rocks. Simple sentence: Noa held the cage. Complex: Noa held the cage that was filled with animals	 We do: Children add relative pronoun and clause to turn the simple sentence into complex. They can use who that or which. Discuss positioning of relative clause – after pandas or rock. Simple sentence: The pandas climbed on the rocks. The clouds drifted through the sky. CFU opportunity. You do:  Children create a complex sentence including a relative pronoun, using picture stimulus on WB. After modelling, children practise applying the skill during the ‘we do’ phase. This provides an opportunity for the teacher to check for understanding. Children then move onto the independent task where they write their own sentences, which they will be able to refer back to during their short and long writes in the sequence.

Short writes

'Short burst' writes provide opportunities for children to practise and apply specific skills within the context of a shorter piece of writing. This allows skills to be embedded without overloading our children by asking them to write too long or complex a piece. A short write allows teachers to check for understanding and provides a scaffold for children as they build up towards writing a longer piece. Building in shorter writes also allows for children to practise their handwriting fluency to help children to build up their stamina and automaticity in writing. Furthermore, this makes longer writing tasks less daunting for children as they already have experience of applying skills within a similar context in the unit. Breaking down the process of writing in this way helps children to develop their understanding of the writing process and helps them to reflect on how to make their writing more effective.

Lesson 5: LO: To build cohesion in a setting description	 Remind yourself of the story so far. Can you add interesting prepositional phrases and relative clauses?  Retell your story including extra detail to your partners.	Explain that today we are going to focus on the voyage/storm part of the story.  In pairs, children complete zones of relevance activity for storm at sea vocabulary. Whole class CFU – relevance of vocabulary. I do: model using the relevant vocabulary, yesterday's preposition list and relative pronouns to describe the sea. Describe the thought process of focusing on the boat rather than the waves or the robot. It is easier to focus on the boat as you can talk about how it's moving and where it's going. To begin describing where this is happening, I'm going to start with a prepositional phrase from my list... In the middle of the ocean, I wonder if I can choose a powerful adjective to describe the ocean... ferocious? How does that sound? In the middle of the ferocious ocean, What was happening? I want to focus in on the boat... a wooden ship was thrown around.  We do: Children complete the given sentence with an embedded relative clause to add detail. Children check for accuracy of punctuation and re-read. The relentless waves, e.g. that crashed over the side, threatened to drag the boat under.	You do: independent task – short burst write. Children use the relevant vocab, preposition list and relative pronouns provided to describe the stormy scene. Children will have prompts on you do slide and modelled write to support writing.	Assess again SC – prepositional phrases to explain where Relative clauses to add extra detail

Success steps have a very specific focus based on SPaG teaching from the unit.

Modelled writing is carefully prepared with a script to ensure clear application of taught SPaG skills. Metacognitive talk ensures teachers model the process an author goes through when writing.

In line with the model of gradual release, teachers provide children with a sentence stem to redraft and to allow checking for understanding.

Planning/ Drafting

Planning is an important part of the writing process as it supports children to become more independent in successfully composing their own writing. This part of the writing process allows children to set goals and supports them in generating their own ideas. As we know, writing is an extremely complex process. By creating a clear plan, we free up children's cognitive resources as they write so that they can focus on applying key skills, composing more complex sentence types and monitoring their writing for errors. They can refer back to their plan as part of monitoring their writing in order to check whether they have achieved their goals. The planning process may lead into explicit drafting practice or children may write and re-draft as part of the longer writing sessions. The use of mini whiteboards for this may be helpful as children can share their ideas with the teacher and easily change ideas.

A plan may take the form of a story mountain, graphic organizer, 'boxing up' plan or another format which helps children to organize their ideas in preparation for writing. The plan needs to be purposeful and useful and it is important to make explicit to children that they are creating this plan in order to help them with their writing later in the unit.

Lesson 8 LO: to plan and write a narrative.

I do: Model adding -ing verb starters to their story map- discuss changing some vocab from -ed to -ing (worked tirelessly – working tirelessly). Then add speech to parts 7 and 8 only.

You do: Children annotate their own story maps.

Retell story to themselves and partner.

During this sequence, children have been adding to their story mountain gradually. They are very familiar with its structure and detail. In this lesson, they add final annotations to support them to be successful in applying specific SPaG skills. Using this plan, children work in pairs to orally retell and rehearse their narrative so that they become increasingly confident.

Write

As part of the longer writing process, we would still expect to see teacher modelling as in EYFS/ KS1 in order to demonstrate how to apply key skills taught as part of the unit. However, this modelling does not to be extensive- a carefully planned sentence to begin a paragraph would be a helpful starting point for children. Building in the opportunity for shared or scaffolded 'we do' writing following this will help children to be successful while still having their writing monitored by their teacher. Once children have received some of this scaffolding, they may be ready to then write more at length independently. Splitting extended writing over more than one lesson helps children to reflect on the writing process and allows a more specific focus on application of skills in each lesson.

Lesson 9 LO: to plan and write a narrative	Re-read your writing so far – checking against previous SC	Introduce updated SC for final 4 paragraphs and remind children of previous learning.  Look back at your storm setting and your speech lessons. Retell paragraphs 5-8 to your talk partner ensuring to include -ing verb openers and speech. I do: model paragraph 5 ensuring to include -ing verb openers, relative clause and prepositional phrase.	You do: Using the teacher's model of paragraph 4 and the sections written in lesson 7, children independently write the rest of the story.	SC relative clauses Prepositional phrases and speech to convey action -ing verb openers

Children have time at the beginning of the lesson to check through yesterday's writing and make corrections. Building in regular opportunities for proof reading and editing is less daunting than editing a whole piece of writing at once.

The extended piece of writing in this sequence is broken down over a few lessons, with a specific focus in each of these lessons. The cycle of modelling, shared writing and independent writing is repeated in each lesson.

Proofread and Edit

In Key Stage 2, proofreading involves checking for basic errors like spelling and punctuation, while editing involves making more significant changes to improve the overall quality and clarity of writing. Proofreading is a surface-level check for mistakes, while editing focuses on improving the substance and flow of the writing. Children need to process of proofreading and editing to be heavily modelled and they will need support with the process in their own work. Partner work can be a useful strategy as part of this process. Breaking the proofreading and editing process down into shorter, focused steps will help children to be more successful. Assessing writing (using success steps and marking for example) should inform the teacher about which children need smaller group support and focus.

Lesson 10 LO: to proofread my own work carefully To edit and improve my writing.	Proofread for speech punctuation in own writing. Swap with partner and find all speech included and check for CL, inverted commas and end punctuation using checklist on board to support. Teacher to work with identified group needing more scaffolded support. If needed you may want to refer back to previous lesson on direct punctuation.	Editing in this lesson will happen in stages with teacher support and explicit instruction. Firstly, children to check what has been achieved on S.C. and tell their partner what their next steps are. Teacher cold call to ensure all children are prepared with next steps. Mini focus – relative clauses / prepositional phrases I do Share the pre-prepared example on whiteboard of sentence which does not contain a relative clauses Model oral rehearsal of how to add a relative clause and correct punctuation. We do Children find an example of a similar sentence in their own writing and share with their partner. Working together, can they improve an example of prepositional phrase or add a relative clause to a sentence to add more detail? Children to use word bank on whiteboard to support. Teacher to work with guided group identified as needing extra support with relative clauses. Children to swap books with partners.	Children should be aware of what their next steps are and this should be made explicit to them through feedback. Breaking the editing process down into separate stages makes it less overwhelming and helps children to focus on specific areas. Once children have had teacher input and are able to edit independently, the teacher can focus on supporting key children.

Publish

Presenting the work so that others can read it. This may not be the outcome for all pieces of writing but when used appropriately it can provide a strong incentive for pupils to produce high quality writing and encourage them to carefully revise and edit. Example strategies: displaying work, presenting to other classes, and sending copies to parents and carers.

Nursery (age 3 – 4 years)

Development Matters: Physical Development

3 and 4 year-olds will be learning to:

Continue to develop their movement, balancing, riding (scooters, trikes and bikes) and ball skills.

Go up steps and stairs, or climb up apparatus, using alternate feet.

Skip, hop, stand on one leg and hold a pose for a game like musical statues.

Use large-muscle movements to wave flags and streamers, paint and make marks.

Start taking part in some group activities which they make up for themselves, or in teams.

Increasingly be able to use and remember sequences and patterns of movements which are related to music and rhythm.

Match their developing physical skills to tasks and activities in the setting. For example, they decide whether to crawl, walk or run across a plank, depending on its length and width.

Examples of how to support this:

Encourage children to transfer physical skills learnt in one context to another one. Suggestion: children might first learn to hammer in pegs to mark their Forest school boundary, using a mallet. Then, they are ready to learn how to use hammers and nails at the woodwork bench.

Encourage children to paint, chalk or make marks with water on large vertical surfaces. Suggestion: use walls as well as easels to stimulate large shoulder and arm movements. These experiences help children to 'cross the mid-line' of their bodies. When they draw a single line from left to right, say, they do not need to pass the paintbrush from one hand to another or have to move their whole body along.

Lead movement-play activities when appropriate. These will challenge and enhance children's physical skills and development - using both fixed and flexible resources, indoors and outside.

Model the vocabulary of movement - 'gallop', 'slither' - and encourage children to use it. Also model the vocabulary of instruction - 'follow', 'lead', 'copy' - and encourage children to use it.

Encourage children to become more confident, competent, creative and adaptive movers. Then, extend their learning by providing opportunities to play outdoors in larger areas, such as larger parks and spaces in the local area, or through Forest or Beach school.

3 and 4 year-olds will be learning to:

Choose the right resources to carry out their own plan. For example, choosing a spade to enlarge a small hole they dug with a trowel.

Collaborate with others to manage large items, such as moving a large plank safely, carrying large hollow blocks.

Use one-handed tools and equipment, for example, making snips in paper with scissors.

Use a comfortable grip with good control when holding pens and pencils.

Show a preference for a dominant hand.

Be increasingly independent as they get dressed and undressed, for example, putting coats on and doing up zips.

Examples of how to support this:

Explain why safety is an important factor in handling tools and moving equipment and materials. Have clear and sensible rules for everybody to follow.

You can begin by showing children how to use one-handed tools (scissors and hammers, for example) and then guide them with hand-over-hand help. Gradually reduce the help you are giving and allow the child to use the tool independently.

The tripod grip is a comfortable way to hold a pencil or pen. It gives the child good control. The pen is pinched between the ball of the thumb and the forefinger, supported by the middle finger with the other fingers tucked into the hand. You can help children to develop this grip with specially designed pens and pencils, or grippers. Encourage children to pick up small objects like individual gravel stones or tiny bits of chalk to draw with.

Encourage children by helping them, but leaving them to do the last steps, such as pulling up their zip after you have started it off. Gradually reduce your help until the child can do each step on their own.

Nursery (age 3 – 4 years)

Development Matters: Literacy

3 and 4 year-olds will be learning to:

Examples of how to support this:

Engage in extended conversations about stories, learning new vocabulary.	Choose books which reflect diversity. Regular sharing of books and discussion of children's ideas and responses (dialogic reading) helps children to develop their early enjoyment and understanding of books. Simple picture books, including those with no text, can be powerful ways of learning new vocabulary (for example, naming what's in the picture). More complex stories will help children to learn a wider range of vocabulary. This type of vocabulary is not in everyday use but occurs frequently in books and other contexts. Examples include: 'caterpillar', 'enormous', 'forest', 'roar' and 'invitation'.
Use some of their print and letter knowledge in their early writing. For example: writing a pretend shopping list that starts at the top of the page; writing 'm' for mummy. Write some or all of their name.	Motivate children to write by providing opportunities in a wide range of ways. Suggestions: clipboards outdoors, chalks for paving stones, boards and notepads in the home corner. Children enjoy having a range of pencils, crayons, chalks and pens to choose from. Apps on tablets enable children to mix marks, photos and video to express meanings and tell their own stories. Children are also motivated by simple home-made books, different coloured paper and paper decorated with fancy frames.
Write some letters accurately.	Help children to learn to form their letters accurately. First, they need a wide-ranging programme of physical skills development, inside and outdoors. Include large-muscle co-ordination: whole body, leg, arm and foot. This can be through climbing, swimming, messy play and parachute games, etc. Plan for small-muscle co-ordination: hands and fingers. This can be through using scissors, learning to sew, eating with cutlery, using small brushes for painting and pencils for drawing. Children also need to know the language of direction ('up', 'down', 'round', 'back', etc).

Reception: Early Learning Goals

Fine Motor Skills

Children at the expected level of development will:

- Hold a pencil effectively in preparation for fluent writing – using the tripod grip in almost all cases;

Writing

Children at the expected level of development will:

- Write recognisable letters, most of which are correctly formed;
- Spell words by identifying sounds in them and representing the sounds with a letter or letters;
- Write simple phrases and sentences that can be read by others.

Being Imaginative and Expressive

Children at the expected level of development will:

- Invent, adapt and recount narratives and stories with peers and their teacher;
- Sing a range of well-known nursery rhymes and songs;
- Perform songs, rhymes, poems and stories with others, and – when appropriate try to move in time with music.

By the end of Reception, children at the expected level of development will:

FS ARE Exemplification

In these units of work pupils have been exploring texts and writing sentences that allow them to apply the phonics they have been taught. Teachers have dictated sentences to the pupils before asking them to create their own sentences based on the structure given. Children are therefore able to independently compose, hold and write their sentences.

As a class or group, pupils sequenced ideas and events in the narratives. They orally rehearsed their ideas before writing. (C)

The pupil can separate words with spaces of a roughly consistent size. (T)

The pupil independently demarcates simple sentences with full stops. (T)

He put on his coat.

He had his coat on at dinner.

He has his coat on in the bath.

Bernard left the shop. The bin is on the run. He can see the tail of the dog. Bernard ran off quick.

The pupil can apply the phonics they have been taught to write simple sentences on the same subject. These can be read by themselves and others as they are phonically plausible. (T)

The pupil can independently use capital letters at the start of sentences. (T)

Pupils should be shown how to segment spoken words into individual phonemes and then how to represent the phonemes by the appropriate grapheme(s). It is important to recognise that phoneme-grapheme correspondences (which underpin spelling) are more variable than grapheme-phoneme correspondences (which underpin reading). For this reason, pupils need to do much more word-specific rehearsal for spelling than for reading. At this stage pupils will be spelling some words in a phonically plausible way, even if sometimes incorrectly. Misspellings of words that pupils have been taught to spell should be corrected; other misspelt words should be used to teach pupils about alternative ways of representing those sounds. Writing simple dictated sentences that include words taught so far gives pupils opportunities to apply and practise their spelling.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> sit correctly at a table, holding a pencil comfortably and correctly begin to form lower-case letters in the correct direction, starting and finishing in the right place form capital letters form digits 0-9 understand which letters belong to which handwriting ‘families’ (i.e. letters that are formed in similar ways) and to practise these. Handwriting requires frequent and discrete, direct teaching. Pupils should be able to form letters correctly and confidently. The size of the writing implement (pencil, pen) should not be too large for a young pupil’s hand. Whatever is being used should allow the pupil to hold it easily and correctly so that bad habits are avoided. Left-handed pupils should receive specific teaching to meet their needs.

VGP

Develop their understanding of the concepts set out in English Appendix 2 by:

- leaving spaces between words
- joining words and joining clauses using and
- beginning to punctuate sentences using a capital letter and a full stop, question mark or exclamation mark
- using a capital letter for names of people, places, the days of the week, and the personal pronoun 'I'
- learning the grammar for year 1 in English Appendix 2

Use the grammatical terminology in English Appendix 2 in discussing their writing

Pupils should be taught to recognise sentence boundaries in spoken sentences and to use the vocabulary listed in English Appendix 2 ('Terminology for pupils') when their writing is discussed. Pupils should begin to use some of the distinctive features of Standard English in their writing. 'Standard English' is defined in the Glossary.

Year 1: Detail of content to be introduced (statutory requirement)

Word	Regular plural noun suffixes –s or –es (for example, dog, dogs; wish, wishes), including the effects of these suffixes on the meaning of the noun Suffixes that can be added to verbs where no change is needed in the spelling of root words (e.g. helping, helped, helper) How the prefix un- changes the meaning of verbs and adjectives (negation, for example, unkind , or undoing: untie the boat)
Sentence	How words can combine to make sentences Joining words and joining clauses using and
Text	Sequencing sentences to form short narratives
Punctuation	Separation of words with spaces Introduction to capital letters, full stops, question marks and exclamation marks to demarcate sentences Capital letters for names and for the personal pronoun /
Terminology for pupils	letter, capital letter word, singular, plural sentence punctuation, full stop, question mark, exclamation mark

Teaching the Year 1 English National Curriculum PoS

During Year 1, teachers should build on work from the Early Years Foundation Stage, making sure that pupils can sound and blend unfamiliar printed words quickly and accurately using the phonic knowledge and skills that they have already learnt. Teachers should also ensure that pupils continue to learn new grapheme-phoneme correspondences (GPCs) and revise and consolidate those learnt earlier. The understanding that the letter(s) on the page represent the sounds in spoken words should underpin pupils' reading and spelling of all words. This includes common words containing unusual GPCs. The term 'common exception words' is used throughout the programmes of study for such words.

Alongside this knowledge of GPCs, pupils need to develop the skill of blending the sounds into words for reading and establish the habit of applying this skill whenever they encounter new words. This will be supported by practice in reading books consistent with their developing phonic knowledge and skill and their knowledge of common exception words. At the same time they will need to hear, share and discuss a wide range of high- quality books to develop a love of reading and broaden their vocabulary.

Pupils should be helped to read words without overt sounding and blending after a few encounters. Those who are slow to develop this skill should have extra practice.

Pupils' writing during year 1 will generally develop at a slower pace than their reading. This is because they need to encode the sounds they hear in words (spelling skills), develop the physical skill needed for handwriting, and learn how to organise their ideas in writing.

Pupils entering year 1 who have not yet met the early learning goals for literacy should continue to follow their school's curriculum for the Early Years Foundation Stage to develop their word reading, spelling and language skills. However, these pupils should follow the year 1 programme of study in terms of the books they listen to and discuss, so that they develop their vocabulary and understanding of grammar, as well as their knowledge more generally across the curriculum. If they are still struggling to decode and spell, they need to be taught to do this urgently through a rigorous and systematic phonics programme so that they catch up rapidly.

Teachers should ensure that their teaching develops pupils' oral vocabulary as well as their ability to understand and use a variety of grammatical structures, giving particular support to pupils whose oral language skills are insufficiently developed.

LSP Year 1 KPIs

	Expected Standard	Depth
Composition	Compose a sentence orally before writing it.	Speak grammatically correct sentences.
	Sequence sentences to form short narratives.	Link sentences together to form a short narrative.
	Re-read what they have written to check it makes sense.	Make some simple corrections to their own writing.

Year 1 ARE Writing Exemplification

Pupil A has demonstrated that they are able to write from memory simple sentences dictated by the teacher. They spell many of the words in this piece accurately. (C)

The use of capital letters and full stops is mainly consistent throughout the piece. (GP)

Pupils described what they might see in a rock pool using the text 'One World' as inspiration.

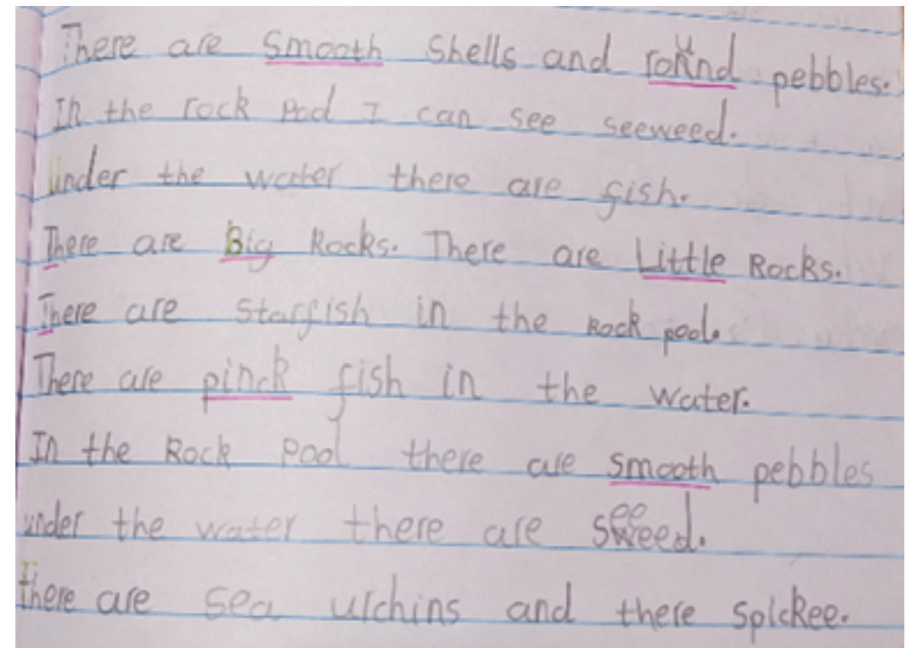

In the build-up to this piece of writing, pupils discussed vocabulary and sentence structure. The pupil had four sentences dictated by the teacher after one modeled example. They then continued independently.

There are smooth shells and round pebbles.
In the rock pool I can see seaweed.
Under the water there are fish.
There are Big Rocks. There are Little Rocks.
There are starfish in the Rock pool.
There are pink fish in the water.

In the Rock pool there are smooth pebbles under the water.
There are seeeed. There are sea urchins and there spikeee.

Spelling is phonetically plausible. Year 1 common exception words included in the piece are spelt correctly (the, are, I, there). (T)

All lower case letters are formed in the correct direction. Spacing between words is secure and consistent. (GP)

The pupil has been able to successfully write a coherent re-tell of a familiar story. They have orally composed their sentences before writing them down. Words are mainly phonetically plausible however, there are occasional errors where the pupil has not identified all the sounds in the word, or has mis-identified the sounds in words such as 'referd'.

(C)

Pupils were asked to write a re-tell of the story 'Oliver's Vegetables'. Pupil A had discussed the ideas as part of whole-class work before writing. The class were given the vocabulary: Grandpa, potatoes, spinach, rhubarb. The first sentence was modelled by the teacher.

I don't eat vegetables Oliver told Grandpa. I only eat chips. If you want chips said Grandpa you must find potatoes. is it a bargin? Or Monday Oliver wond around the gardin But Oliver cudnt see enee potatoes just tho fing for a Monday Lench on Tuesday Oliver looked for a long time. Oliver found Spinach. They had spinach for Lench That was good On wednesday Oliver woc up erlee Oliver found rhubarb that nit they had rhubarb pie what was rere good.

The pupil correctly uses 's' as a plural marker for a noun. (T)

Spelling is phonetically plausible. Year 1 common exception words included in the piece are spelt correctly (I, only, said, you, what, was, good).

(T)

There is accurate use of capital letters for names and for days of the week in the majority of the piece. (GP)

Some sentences have been punctuated with a capital letter and a full stop. However, this is inconsistent. (GP)

I don't eat vegetables Oliver told Grandpa. I only eat chips. if you want chips ~~said~~ ^{said} grandpa you must find ~~potatoes~~ ^{potatoes}. is it a bargin? On Monday Oliver wond ~~around~~ ^{wond} the gardin But Oliver cudnt see enee potatoes just tho fing for a Monday Lench on Tuesday Oliver looked for a long time. Oliver found Spinach. They had spinach for Lench that was good. On wednesday Oliver woc up erlee Oliver found rhubarb that nit they had rhubarb pie what was rere good. On Thursday it rained when it finisht.

Year 1 GDS Exemplification

Children wrote descriptive sentences about the characters in the story Billy and the Beast. In previous lessons, they had collated a list of nouns and then moved on to writing sentences including these nouns.

Simple corrections are made to writing both during the writing process, showing self-monitoring skills, and in response to feedback. (C)

Alternative sounds are used accurately e.g. coat, ears, fur.

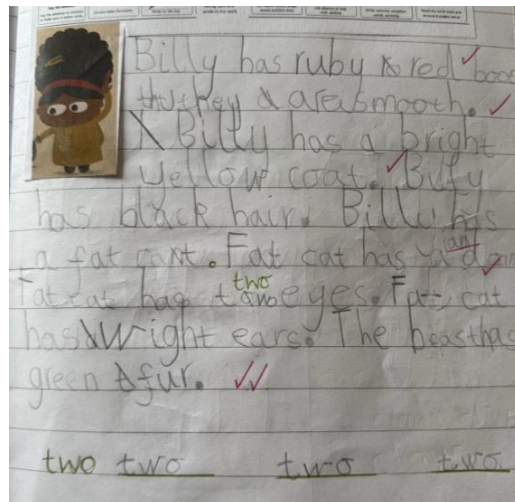

Billy has ruby red boots.

~~the~~ they are smooth.

Billy has a bright yellow coat.

Billy has black hair. Billy has a fat cant. Fat cat has a jam donut. Fat cat has ~~to~~ two eyes.

Fat cat has wight ears. The beast has green & fur.

In the lessons leading up to this extended write, children generated expanded noun phrases, wrote sentences about the character's emotions and ordered key events from the story. The writing was completed over three lessons, with modelling and transcriptional built into each.

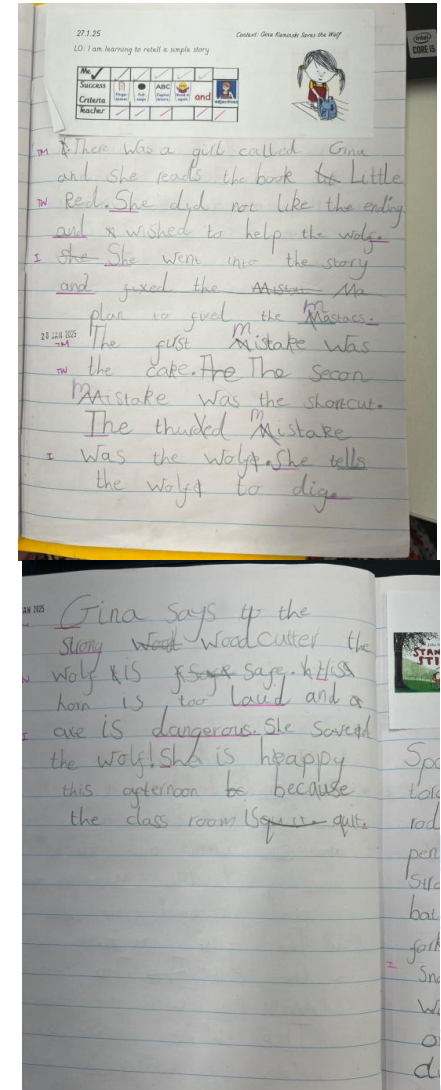

This piece of narrative writing demonstrates the pupil's ability to make simple corrections to their own writing in both dictated and independently written sentences. Their sentences are grammatically correct and well structured. (C)

(M) There was a girl called Gina and she reads the book # Little Red.
(T) She did not like the ending and ~~h~~ wished to help the wolf. (I) she
She went into the story and fixed the ~~mista~~ plan to fixed the mastacs. (M) The first mistake was the cake. The (T) The second M mistake was the shortcut. (I) The thurd M mistake was the wolfe.
She tells the wolfe to dig. (M) Gina says to the strong woodcutter
the wolf is safe. (T) ~~h~~ His s-horn is too loud and axe is dangerous.
(I) She saved the wolf! She is happy this afternoon because the class room is quiet.

The pupil demonstrates knowledge of how to apply suffixes. These are correctly applied without altering the root word. (T)

The pupil demonstrates awareness of alternative spellings in words like dangerous, mistake, shortcut, safe. (T)

Spelling is accurate throughout the piece and year 1 spelling words are correct (the, was, she, to, I, his). All sentences are punctuated correctly with a capital letter and a full stop, with this being independently corrected if necessary during the writing process. The pupil also uses an exclamation mark correctly. Spaces between words are clear. (T)

In the build up to writing this set of instructions, children read the story Leo and the Octopus by Isabelle Marinov. They gathered information to write factual sentences about octopuses. In the next lesson, children rehearsed instructional sentences orally and wrote sentences including given imperative verbs. They applied all of this knowledge to create this longer set of instruction.

This set of instructions demonstrates the pupil's ability to make simple corrections to their own writing. Their sentences are grammatically correct and well structured and demonstrate more complex sentence structures with use of conjunctions. (C)

'And' is used correctly to join words and to extend ideas within sentences. The child shows understanding of more complex conjunctions where 'because' is used correctly to join clauses. (GP)

How to keep an octopus happy

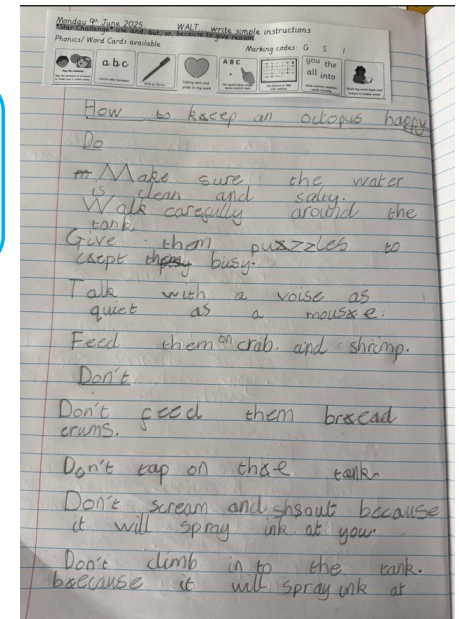

Do:

- Make sure the water is clean and salty.
- Walk carefully around the tank.
- Give them puzzles to cept them busy, busy.
- Talk with a voice as quiet as a mousee
- Feed them on crab and shrimp.

Don't:

- Don't feed them bread crumbs.
- Don't rap on the tank.
- Don't scream and shout because it will spray ink at you
- Don't climb in to the tank because it will spray ink at you.

Words are spelt correctly using alternative graphemes e.g. "y" in busy and "ou" in mouse. (T)

Spelling is accurate throughout the piece and year 1 spelling words are correct (to, into, don't, the, a, you). All sentences are punctuated correctly with a capital letter and a full stop. The pupil also uses apostrophes for contraction correctly. Spaces between words are clear. (T)

The process of spelling should be emphasised: that is, that spelling involves segmenting spoken words into phonemes and then representing all the phonemes by graphemes in the right order. Pupils should do this both for single-syllable and multi-syllabic words. At this stage children's spelling should be phonically plausible, even if not always correct. Misspellings of words that pupils have been taught to spell should be corrected; other misspelt words can be used as an opportunity to teach pupils about alternative ways of representing those sounds. Pupils should be encouraged to apply their knowledge of suffixes from their word reading to their spelling. They should also draw from and apply their growing knowledge of word and spelling structure, as well as their knowledge of root words.	Form lower-case letters of the correct size relative to one another Start using some of the diagonal and horizontal strokes needed to join letters and understand which letters, when adjacent to one another, are best left unjoined Write capital letters and digits of the correct size, orientation and relationship to one another and to lower case letters Use spacing between words that reflects the size of the letters Pupils should revise and practise correct letter formation frequently. They should be taught to write with a joined style as soon as they can form letters securely with the correct orientation.

Composition

Develop positive attitudes towards and stamina for writing by:

- writing narratives about personal experiences and those of others (real and fictional)
- writing about real events
- writing poetry
- writing for different purposes

Consider what they are going to write before beginning by:

- planning or saying out loud what they are going to write about
- writing down ideas and/or key words, including new vocabulary
- encapsulating what they want to say, sentence by sentence

Make simple additions, revisions and corrections to their own writing by:

- evaluating their writing with the teacher and other pupils
- re-reading to check that their writing makes sense and that verbs to indicate time are used correctly and consistently, including verbs in the continuous form
- proof-reading to check for errors in spelling, grammar and punctuation (for example, ends of sentences punctuated correctly)

Read aloud what they have written with appropriate intonation to make the meaning clear

Reading and listening to whole books, not simply extracts, helps pupils to increase their vocabulary and grammatical knowledge, including their knowledge of the vocabulary and grammar of Standard English. These activities also help them to understand how different types of writing, including narratives, are structured. All these can be drawn on for their writing. Pupils should understand, through being shown these, the skills and processes essential to writing: that is, thinking aloud as they collect ideas, drafting, and re-reading to check their meaning is clear. Drama and role-play can contribute to the quality of pupils' writing by providing opportunities for pupils to develop and order their ideas through playing roles and improvising scenes in various settings. Pupils might draw on and use new vocabulary from their reading, their discussions about it (one-to-one and as a whole class) and from their wider experiences.

VGP

Develop their understanding of the concepts set out in English Appendix 2 by:

- learning how to use both familiar and new punctuation correctly (see English Appendix 2), including full stops, capital letters, exclamation marks, question marks, commas for lists and apostrophes for contracted forms and the possessive (singular)
- sentences with different forms: statement, question, exclamation, command
- expanded noun phrases to describe and specify (for example, the blue butterfly)
- the present and past tenses correctly and consistently including the progressive form
- subordination (using when, if, that, or because) and co-ordination (using or, and, or but)
- the grammar for year 2 in English Appendix 2
- some features of written Standard English
- use and understand the grammatical terminology in English Appendix 2 in discussing their writing.

The terms for discussing language should be embedded for pupils in the course of discussing their writing with them. Their attention should be drawn to the technical terms they need to learn

Year 2: Detail of content to be introduced (statutory requirement)

Word	Formation of nouns using suffixes such as -ness , -er and by compounding (for example, whiteboard , superman) Formation of adjectives using suffixes such as -ful , -less (A fuller list of suffixes can be found on page 46 in the year 2 spelling section in English Appendix 1) Use of the suffixes -er , -est in adjectives and the use of -ly in Standard English to turn adjectives into adverbs
Sentence	Subordination (using when , if , that , because) and co-ordination (using or , and , but) Expanded noun phrases for description and specification (for example, the blue butterfly , plain flour , the man in the moon) How the grammatical patterns in a sentence indicate its function as a statement, question, exclamation or command
Text	Correct choice and consistent use of present tense and past tense throughout writing Use of the progressive form of verbs in the present and past tense to mark actions in progress (for example, she is drumming , he was shouting)
Punctuation	Use of capital letters, full stops, question marks and exclamation marks to demarcate sentences Commas to separate items in a list Apostrophes to mark where letters are missing in spelling and to mark singular possession in nouns (for example, the girl's name)
Terminology for pupils	noun, noun phrase statement, question, exclamation, command compound, suffix adjective, adverb, verb tense (past, present) apostrophe, comma

Teaching the Year 2 English National Curriculum PoS

By the beginning of Year 2, pupils should be able to read all common graphemes. They should be able to read unfamiliar words containing these graphemes, accurately and without undue hesitation, by sounding them out in books that are matched closely to each pupil's level of word reading knowledge. They should also be able to read many common words containing GPCs taught so far (for example, shout, hand, stop, or dream), without needing to blend the sounds out loud first. Pupils' reading of common exception words (for example, you, could, many, or people), should be secure. Pupils will increase their fluency by being able to read these words easily and automatically. Finally, pupils should be able to retell some familiar stories that have been read to and discussed with them or that they have acted out during year 1.

During year 2, teachers should continue to focus on establishing pupils' accurate and speedy word reading skills. They should also make sure that pupils listen to and discuss a wide range of stories, poems, plays and information books; this should include whole books. The sooner that pupils can read well and do so frequently, the sooner they will be able to increase their vocabulary, comprehension and their knowledge across the wider curriculum.

In writing, pupils at the beginning of year 2 should be able to compose individual sentences orally and then write them down. They should be able to spell correctly many of the words covered in year 1 (see English Appendix 1). They should also be able to make phonically plausible attempts to spell words they have not yet learnt. Finally, they should be able to form individual letters correctly, so establishing good handwriting habits from the beginning.

It is important to recognise that pupils begin to meet extra challenges in terms of spelling during year 2. Increasingly, they should learn that there is not always an obvious connection between the way a word is said and the way it is spelt. Variations include different ways of spelling the same sound, the use of so-called silent letters and groups of letters in some words and, sometimes, spelling that has become separated from the way that words are now pronounced, such as the 'le' ending in table. Pupils' motor skills also need to be sufficiently advanced for them to write down ideas that they may be able to compose orally. In addition, writing is intrinsically harder than reading: pupils are likely to be able to read and understand more complex writing (in terms of its vocabulary and structure) than they are capable of producing themselves.

For pupils who do not have the phonic knowledge and skills they need for year 2, teachers should use the year 1 programmes of study for word reading and spelling so that pupils' word reading skills catch up. However, teachers should use the year 2 programme of study for comprehension so that these pupils hear and talk about new books, poems, other writing, and vocabulary with the rest of the class.

Year 3 - Lower KS2 (7-9 years)

Spelling

Handwriting

VGP

Comp

Years 3 and 4 Statutory and Non Statutory Guidance

Spelling

- use further prefixes and suffixes and understand how to add them (English Appendix 1)
- spell further homophones
- spell words that are often misspelt (English Appendix 1)
- place the possessive apostrophe accurately in words with regular plurals (for example, girls', boys') and in words with irregular plurals (for example, children's)
- use the first two or three letters of a word to check its spelling in a dictionary
- write from memory simple sentences, dictated by the teacher, that include words and punctuation taught so far

Pupils should learn to spell new words correctly and have plenty of practice in spelling them. As in years 1 and 2, pupils should continue to be supported in understanding and applying the concepts of word structure (see English Appendix 2). Pupils need sufficient knowledge of spelling in order to use dictionaries efficiently.

Composition

Plan their writing by:

- discussing writing similar to that which they are planning to write in order to understand and learn from its structure, vocabulary and grammar
- discussing and recording ideas

Draft and write by:

- composing and rehearsing sentences orally (including dialogue), progressively building a varied and rich vocabulary and an increasing range of sentence structures (English Appendix 2)
- organising paragraphs around a theme
- in narratives, creating settings, characters and plot
- in non-narrative material, using simple organisational devices (for example, headings and sub-headings)

Evaluate and edit by:

- assessing the effectiveness of their own and others' writing and suggesting improvements
- proposing changes to grammar and vocabulary to improve consistency, including the accurate use of pronouns in sentences
- proof-read for spelling and punctuation errors
- read aloud their own writing, to a group or the whole class, using appropriate intonation and controlling the tone and volume so that the meaning is clear.

Pupils should continue to have opportunities to write for a range of real purposes and audiences as part of their work across the curriculum. These purposes and audiences should underpin the decisions about the form the writing should take, such as a narrative, an explanation or a description. Pupils should understand, through being shown these, the skills and processes that are essential for writing: that is, thinking aloud to explore and collect ideas, drafting, and re-reading to check their meaning is clear, including doing so as the writing develops. Pupils should be taught to monitor whether their own writing makes sense in the same way that they monitor their reading, checking at different levels.

Handwriting should continue to be taught, with the aim of increasing the fluency with which pupils are able to write down what they want to say. At this stage, pupils should start to learn about some of the differences between Standard English and non-Standard English and begin to apply what they have learnt (for example, in writing dialogue for characters).

Word	Formation of nouns using a range of prefixes (for example super- , anti- , auto-) Use of the forms a or an according to whether the next word begins with a consonant or a vowel ((or example, a rock, an open box)) Word families based on common words , showing how words are related in form and meaning (for example, solve , solution , solver , dissolve , insoluble)
Sentence	Expressing time, place and cause using conjunctions (for example, when , before , after , while , so , because), adverbs (for example, then , next , soon , therefore), or prepositions (for example, before , after , during , in , because of)
Text	Introduction to paragraphs as a way to group related material Headings and sub-headings to aid presentation Use of the present perfect form of verbs instead of the simple past (for example, He has gone out to play contrasted with He went out to play)
Punctuation	Introduction to inverted commas to punctuate direct speech
Terminology for pupils	preposition, conjunction word family, prefix clause, subordinate clause direct speech consonant, consonant letter vowel, vowel letter inverted commas (or 'speech marks')

Teaching the Year 3 and 4 POS

By the beginning of Year 3, pupils should be able to read books written at an age appropriate interest level. They should be able to read them accurately and at a speed that is sufficient for them to focus on understanding what they read rather than on decoding individual words. They should be able to decode most new words outside their spoken vocabulary, making a good approximation to the word's pronunciation. As their decoding skills become increasingly secure, teaching should be directed more towards developing their vocabulary and the breadth and depth of their reading, making sure that they become independent, fluent and enthusiastic readers who read widely and frequently. They should be developing their understanding and enjoyment of stories, poetry, plays and non-fiction, and learning to read silently. They should also be developing their knowledge and skills in reading non-fiction about a wide range of subjects. They should be learning to justify their views about what they have read: with support at the start of year 3 and increasingly independently by the end of year 4.

Pupils should be able to write down their ideas with a reasonable degree of accuracy and with good sentence punctuation. Teachers should therefore be consolidating pupils' writing skills, their vocabulary, their grasp of sentence structure and their knowledge of linguistic terminology. Teaching them to develop as writers involves teaching them to enhance the effectiveness of what they write as well as increasing their competence. Teachers should make sure that pupils build on what they have learnt, particularly in terms of the range of their writing and the more varied grammar, vocabulary and narrative structures from which they can draw to express their ideas. Pupils should be beginning to understand how writing can be different from speech. Joined handwriting should be the norm; pupils should be able to use it fast enough to keep pace with what they want to say.

Pupils' spelling of common words should be correct, including common exception words and other words that they have learnt (see English Appendix 1). Pupils should spell words as accurately as possible using their phonic knowledge and other knowledge of spelling, such as morphology and etymology.

Most pupils will not need further direct teaching of word reading skills: they are able to decode unfamiliar words accurately, and need very few repeated experiences of this before the word is stored in such a way that they can read it without overt sound-blending. They should demonstrate understanding of figurative language, distinguish shades of meaning among related words and use age-appropriate, academic vocabulary.

LIGHTHOUSE
SCHOOLS PARTNERSHIP

As in key stage 1, however, pupils who are still struggling to decode need to be taught to do this urgently through a rigorous and systematic phonics programme so that they catch up rapidly with their peers. If they cannot decode independently and fluently, they will find it increasingly difficult to understand what they read and to write down what they want to say. As far as possible, however, these pupils should follow the year 3 and 4 programme of study in terms of listening to new books, hearing and learning new vocabulary and grammatical structures, and discussing these.

Specific requirements for pupils to discuss what they are learning and to develop their wider skills in spoken language form part of this programme of study. In years 3 and 4, pupils should become more familiar with and confident in using language in a greater variety of situations, for a variety of audiences and purposes, including through drama, formal presentations and debate.

Year 3 LSP KPIs

	Expected Standard	Depth
Composition	Organise paragraphs around a theme.	Writing shows cohesion within each paragraph.
	In non-fiction, use simple organisational devices (e.g. sub-headings).	In non-fiction writing, select appropriate organisational devices to show understanding of the audience and purpose they are writing for
	In narratives create settings, characters and plot.	Settings and character are described in increasing detail.
	Composes sentences, using a rich and varied vocabulary.	Vocabulary is carefully chosen to compose sentences that have impact on the reader
	Proof-reads for spelling errors identified by the teacher.	Independently proof-reads for spelling errors.
	Proof-reads for punctuation errors (CL . ? ! “ ” , in a list ‘ for contractions) when identified by the teacher.	Independently proof reads for punctuation errors (CL . ? ! “ ” , in a list ‘ for contractions).
Vocabulary, Grammar and Punctuation	Use conjunctions, adverbs and prepositions to express time and cause within a sentence (when, if that, because, so that, since during).	Begin to use a wider range of sentence types and structures to vary writing.
	Chooses an appropriate pronoun or noun within sentences.	Independently uses some pronouns within writing to avoid repetition and add interest
	Uses inverted commas to punctuate direct speech	Punctuates some direct speech accurately (e.g ? !).
	Use possessive apostrophe mostly accurately with singular nouns.
	Using capital letters full stops question marks commas for lists and apostrophes for contraction mostly effectively.	Uses taught punctuation to add effect to writing
Handwriting	Use the diagonal and horizontal strokes needed to join letters in most of their writing and understand which letters when adjacent one another are best left unjoined.
Transcription	Spell many of the words from the taught Y3/4 spelling list accurately.	Spell most of the words from the taught Y3/4 spelling list accurately.
	Apply knowledge of spelling rules and patterns taught in Year 3

Year 3 ARE Exemplification

This biography is written appropriately for its audience (informing the audience about Howard Carter's life). It demonstrates many features of non-fiction writing. Concise sentences are used as well as appropriate technical vocabulary.

Information is organised by theme into appropriate paragraphs.

The pupil writes with formality appropriate to this type of non-fiction writing and builds cohesion well at an age appropriate level using pronouns, conjunctions and adverbials. (C)

Correct use of fronted subordination to build cohesion. The fronted subordination is not always demarcated with a comma but this is not yet the expectation. (GP)

Children wrote a biography of Howard Carter based on the text 'The Story of Tutankhamun' by Patricia Cleveland-Peck. In the build up to this piece of writing, children made inferences about Carter's personality and practised some sentence-level work using conjunctions and possessive apostrophes about the book. They then completed a diary entry in role as Carter where they demonstrated their understanding of how to use adverbs, possessive apostrophes and expanded noun phrases.

Howard Carter was born on the 9th of May 1874 in London. He was very stubborn - as a child. He had 10 siblings and he had poor health. So because Carter had poor health he was taught by his aunts but his dad taught him to draw at a very young age. Then which made him come a very talented artist.

After Carter moved to Egypt at the age of 17, He enjoyed being a tracer, drawing and painting tombs. He became a chief inspector for excavations in the valleys of the Kings. Also Howard Carter worked with Davis who did not get on at all! But Carter got enough a job in Memphis. He was so happy and grumpy but at the same time. Carter also argued with a French tourist and resigned. He sadly sold his paintings and artifacts to make money.

Carter's When his life changed because he was a talented artist. He met a person called Lord Carnarvon who was into Egypt. So they went to find it together.

Finally they spotted it in front of my eyes. They saw King Tut's tomb. After 10 years of searching they found it. But then he and Lord Carnarvon found a sealed door. At first he thought it had been robbed by somebody!

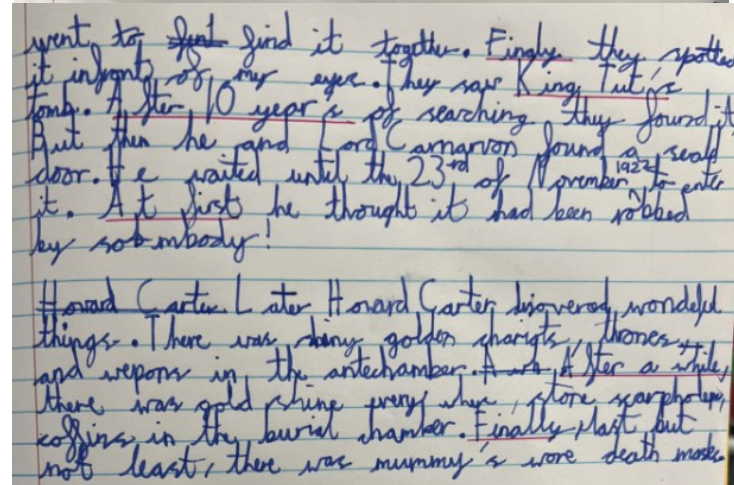

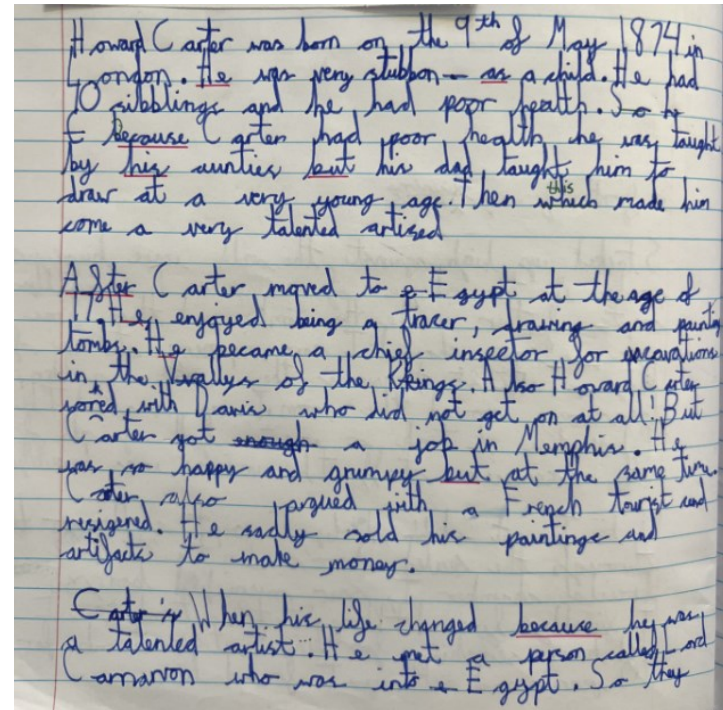

Howard Carter Later Howard Carter discovered wonderful things. There was shiny golden chariots, thrones and weapons in the antechamber. After a while, there was gold shine everywhere, stone scarphole coffins in the burial chamber. Finally, last but not least, there was the mummy's death mask.

Spelling rules from previous years have been used correctly e.g. adding suffixes (changed, wanted) with occasional errors (seald).

Spelling is mostly accurate with a few errors in more unfamiliar words. (artised)

Throughout the biography, punctuation is broadly accurate, including capital letters for proper nouns. Possessive apostrophes are used correctly. Commas are not yet consistently used to demarcate fronted subordinate clauses but this pupil demonstrates a good understanding of how to manipulate clause structure. (T)

Use of pronouns to build cohesion. There is clarity around who this pronoun refers to. (GP)

This non-chronological report is written with appropriate formality, which is maintained throughout. The pupil uses technical, subject-specific vocabulary appropriately. Verb tense is maintained throughout the piece. Information is organised into themed paragraphs. Cohesion is built throughout the piece using conjunctions and pronouns. (C)

The Ancient Egyptians is a history unit for Year 3. To summarise all of their learning, children were tasked with writing a non-chronological report. This meant they had information to organise into paragraphs with appropriate sub headings. Children were shown a WAGOLL non-chronological report to highlight the key features.

Food

Many pictures and carvings have shown us what they ate. Thanks to the annual flood Egyptians would have an area where they could harvest their food and make lots of different types of bread. Mostly poor people would have bread and onions. Depending on the class the rich would have meat, eggs, figs and grapes.

Houses

Ancient Egyptian houses were built of mudbricks which were made by dirty mud, water and papyrus together. They were left to dry and harden in the sun. They had small windows because it kept the houses ventilated. There was a massive difference between rich houses and poor houses the poor had small houses but the rich had a massive bit of land with beautiful, big pools and slaves.

Commas correctly used for a list. (GP)

Clothes

In Ancient Egypt linen was the most common textile. Men wore knee length kilts and women wore ankle length dresses. It helped Egyptians because it was comfortable in the boiling heat. White was useful because white reflects the sun to keep cool.

Correct use of apostrophe for contraction. (GP)

Entertainment

Egyptians had board games like we do but they were different in a way. One of the most famous Egyptian games was called senet. Many Egyptian pharaohs put board games in a tomb when they died so in the afterlife they didn't get bored.

Writing

The Ancient Egyptians invented one of the earliest known writing systems made. They used symbols called hieroglyphs which in Greek word means sacred carvings. This is because Egyptians though it was written-written by the gods. Surprisingly some pharaohs could write but not many.

Prepositions, adverbs and conjunctions are used to build cohesion. This pupil uses both subordinating and co-ordinating conjunctions to extend sentences. (GP)

Correct use of apostrophe for possession. (GP)

Society

Egyptian society was structured like a pyramid and at the very top of the pyramid is the pharaoh, Egypt's supreme leader. Next were several classes and the lower down the more people and the lower the class.

Spelling rules from previous year groups are applied correctly e.g. adding suffixes (useful, beautiful, earliest, structured).

Words from the year 3/4 spelling list are mostly spelt correctly but sometimes inconsistently (different/ difference).

Throughout the report, punctuation is broadly accurate, including capital letters for proper nouns. Commas are used accurately for lists and possessive apostrophes are used accurately. (T)

This 'short burst' piece of writing is written consistently in third person.

Sentences are accurately composed, with a variety of sentence types used.

The pupil develops the plot and uses speech throughout to develop the plot further.

The narrative is paragraphed accurately to show a change in time.

(C)

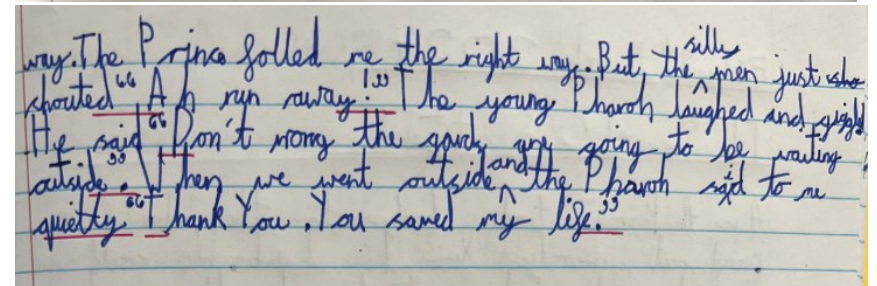

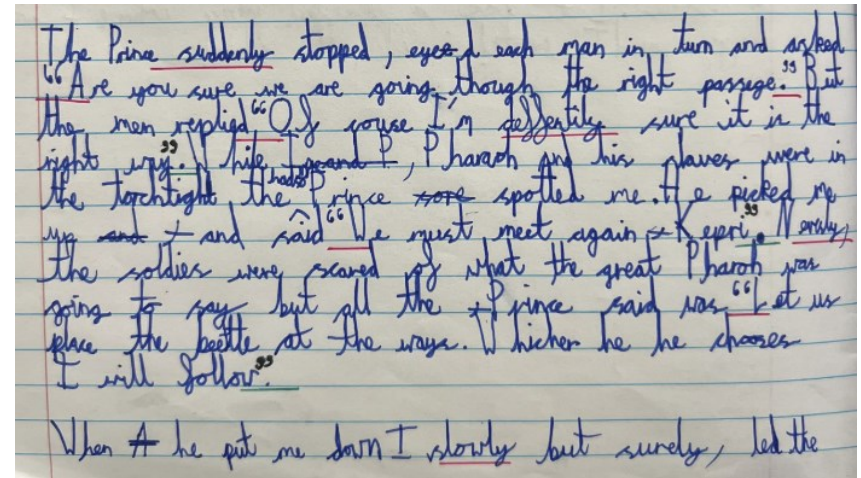

This piece of writing is based on 'The Scarab's Secret' by Nick Would. Children wrote a short setting description to practise using adverbs and expanded noun phrases before this piece of writing. This piece was an opportunity to revisit use of speech punctuation, which children had practised earlier in the year.

The Prince suddenly stopped, eyed each man in turn and asked "Are you sure we are going through the right passage." But the men replied "Of course I'm deffently sure it is the right way". While Pharaoh and his slaves were in the torchlight the hadsome Prince ~~soe~~ spotted me. He picked me up and said "We must meet again Kepri". Nervously, the soldiers were scared of what the great Pharaoh was going to say but all the Prince said was "Let us place the beetle at the ways. Whichever he chooses I will follow".

The pupil correctly demarcates all speech with the correct use of inverted commas. All speech begins correctly with a capital letter, which is not yet an expectation. Some speech is correctly punctuated at the end but other examples show end punctuation being used incorrectly outside of the inverted commas. (GP)

Correct use of conjunctions and adverbs to express time and cause within a sentence. Commas are not yet used for fronted subordination but this isn't yet an expectation. (GP)

When he put me down I slowly but surely, led the way. The Prince folled me the right way. But the silly men just shouted "Ah run away!". The young Pharaoh laughed and giggled. He said "Don't worry the guards are going to be waiting outside." Then we went outside and the Pharaoh said to me quietly "Thank you. You saved my life."

Year 3/4 spelling rules are applied, The /n/ sound spelt ou (young).

The suffix -ous and the suffix -ly (nervously, slowly, surely).

Words from the year 3/4 spelling list are mostly spelt correctly (guard). Occasional errors are made and some of these errors are made with previously learnt rules such as adding -ed suffix (eyeed).

This 'short burst' piece of writing is written consistently in third person, in keeping with the story used as a stimulus. The pupil uses prepositional phrases to help the reader to visualise the setting.

This pupil uses senses to add interest and detail.

Cohesion is built through the use of prepositional phrases and adverbs. Paragraphs are used to organise ideas around a theme.

Vocabulary is carefully selected to create effective expanded noun phrases.

Prepositions of place are used to build a picture of the character in the reader's head. (GP)

The Pied Piper had a large, bright, red hat on top of his head. He has a cherry red scarf with orange dots on his neck. The man's face was seirios underneath his hat. His vibrant clothes that had patterns on were around his body. The brave man had a long, lanky body that was under his vibrant clothes. The amazing man had a silver, sparkling flute shining in the sunlight near his arms. On his feet he had shiny, black shoes.

Correct use of comma for listing adjectives. (GP)

Use of pronouns to build cohesion and avoid repetition. (GP)

This 'short burst' piece of writing is written consistently in third person, in keeping with the story used as a stimulus. It 'sets the scene' for a narrative opening. The pupil uses prepositional phrases to help the reader to visualise the setting.

This pupil uses senses and varied vocabulary to add interest and detail.

Cohesion is built through the use of prepositional phrases and adverbs. Paragraphs are used to organise ideas around a theme.

Vocabulary is carefully selected to create effective expanded noun phrases.

(C)

Prepositions, adverbs and conjunctions are used to build cohesion. This pupil uses both subordinating and co-ordinating conjunctions to extend sentences. (GP)

The text Escape from Pompeii is used as a stimulus for writing. Children planned ideas for their setting description using senses and collected appropriate vocabulary to describe the setting from their vocabulary lessons. Teachers modelled improving a basic setting description by using adjectives and adverbs to describe and add detail.

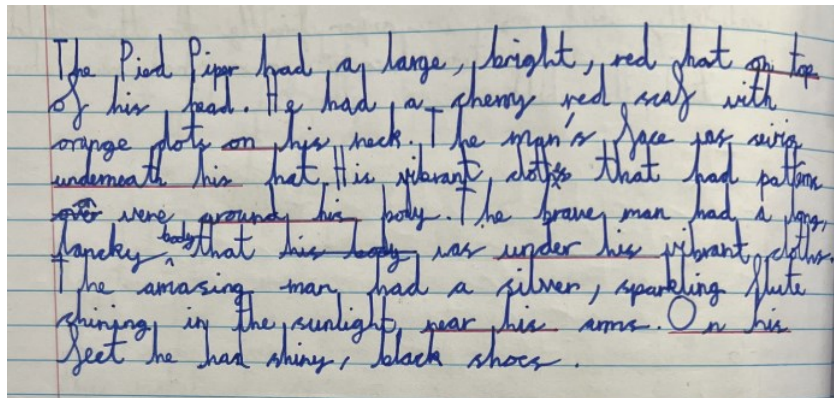

Escape from Pompeii setting description

In Pompeii there were old, bustling streets and imposing houses. In the distance a mountain called mount Vesuvius had great big rugged mountains near it. On the houses there were little cracks on the walls. There was a beautiful, shimmering hot sun in the sky. Slowly, the smell in the air floated towards my nose and it smelt like fresh new bread.

In the old harbour fishermen were busy working. The small of stagment fish was on the nets as the fishermen caught them. They put them in pots with scratches and marks on. Waves crashing in the astonishing blue ocean were making noisy sounds. In the distance there were boats floating on the choppy see-sea.

In the middle of the town loud crowds and politicians were making their speaches and poets were saying poems. Powerful wind was blowing in my face.

Commas correctly to list adjectives. These are sometimes omitted e.g. great big rugged mountains or astonishing blue ocean. (GP)

Year 3/4 spelling rules are applied, including -ly added to an adjective to form an adverb (slowly). The -ing suffix is used correctly throughout (bustling, shimmering, crashing). Occasional errors are made with previously learnt phonemes in less familiar words (speaches). This pupil self-corrected a homophone error (see-sea). (T)

Year 3 GDS Exemplification

Children wrote a setting description based on the story The Last Garden by Rachel Ip. Children worked on generating specific, detailed noun phrases in the build up to this piece.

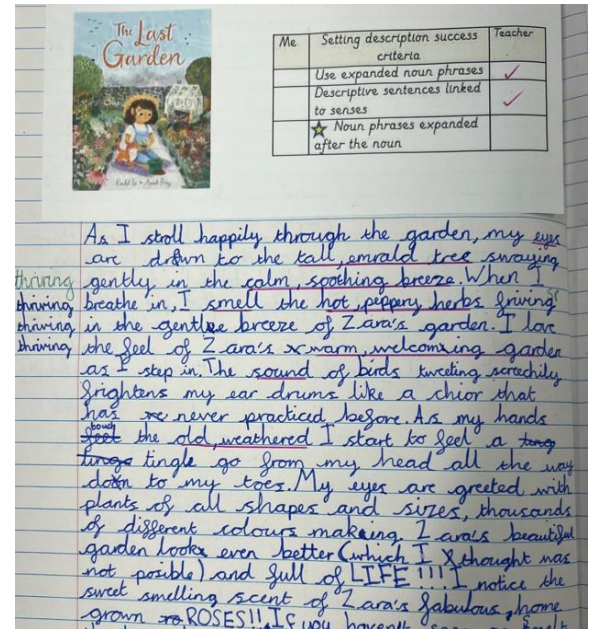

The paragraph flows well from one sense to another—sight, sound, smell, touch—creating a fully immersive experience. There’s a consistent and confident narrative voice throughout, and each sentence logically develops the setting. The piece is written consistently in first person. (C)

Punctuation is used to add effect. (GP)

As I stroll happily through the garden, my eyes are drawn to the tall, emerald tree swaying gently in the calm, soothing breeze. When I breathe in, I smell the hot, peppery herbs flying in the gentle breeze of Zara’s garden. I adore the feel of Zara’s warm, welcoming garden as I step in. The sound of birds tweeting screechily frightens my ear drums like a choir that has never practiced before. As my hands ~~feel~~ touch the old, weathered I start to feel a ting tingle go from my head all the way down to my toes. My eyes are greeted with plants of all shapes and sizes, thousands of different colours making Zara’s beautiful garden looks even better (which I thought was not possible) and full of LIFE!! I notice the sweet smelling scent of Zara’s fabulous home grown ROSES!!

The setting is described in increasing detail with carefully selected adjectives. (C)

Spelling is mostly accurate throughout the piece. Word from the year 3/4 spelling list have been spelt correctly (breathe, different). Punctuation is accurate throughout the piece and the child uses brackets, which have not yet been explicitly taught. The child uses exclamation marks for emphasis, showing that they are choosing to use this piece of punctuation for impact and effect, though these don’t fit with the formality. Punctuation is accurate throughout with the child using possessive apostrophes and commas to separate adjectives correctly. (T)

Children wrote a letter to a friend based on The Last Garden by Rachel Ip. In the build up to this longer piece of writing, children worked on creating expanded noun phrases and writing a setting description of the garden. They also completed sentence level work, creating complex sentences using subordination.

Dear Friends,

I have returned to our garden and I had to write to you straight away to tell you about it.

As I approached the rickety wooden door, my tummy lurched and my palms began to sweat. I felt anxious as I reached for the old copper key in my pocket. I was worried that my garden wouldn't be the same.

To my astonishment, I noticed the amazing colours and the sweet fragrance of nature we know so well.

I was greeted by all the flowers that had bloomed and the good smell while buzzing bees buzzed-flew around the garden.

I felt amazed because all the flowers were even bigger and have bloomed more. Sadly, the green house pane is broken but the flowers still grew.

We will need to fix the green house and the swing but everything else is okay.

We can still grow flowers and food but we need it fixed soon. Upon your return everything is will still be growing in our garden.

As you enter, everything is still glowing. You will feel happy and relitied.

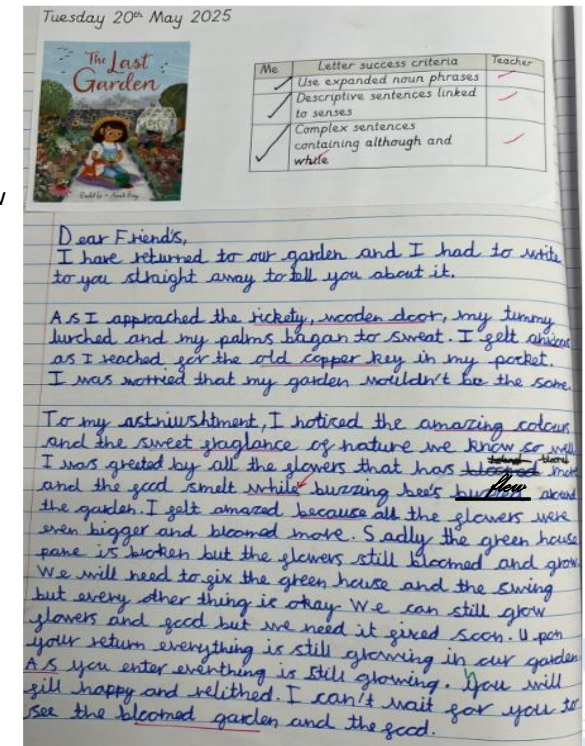

I can't wait for you to see the beautiful garden and the food.

Adjectives are carefully selected to describe the setting and emotions are described in increasing detail. (C)

This piece is cohesively written and ideas are grouped within paragraphs. The letter flows in chronological order and ideas are well organised. The pupil skilfully switches between tenses and understands how to maintain control over this. The setting is described in detail. It maintains a warm, expressive tone throughout and shows a secure understanding of letter structure and purpose. (C)

Cohesion is built within and across paragraphs using a variety of conjunctions and adverbials. Fronted subordination and fronted adverbials are punctuated correctly using a comma. (C) (GP)

Spelling is mostly accurate throughout the piece. Words from the year 3/4 spelling list have been spelt correctly (write, straight). Punctuation is accurate throughout the piece and the child uses all speech punctuation correctly, including capital letters to begin the speech and end punctuation within the inverted commas. (T)

This is a strong narrative retelling showing secure and sometimes advanced Year 3 writing. The writer confidently uses direct speech. Cohesive devices are used confidently, including prepositional phrases and subordinating conjunctions. Pronouns are also chosen to add impact, for example 'the yellow, shining orb'.
(C)

Children retold a section of the narrative Marcy and the Riddle of the Sphinx by Joe Todd-Stanton. In the lead up to this piece of writing, they had practised sentence level application of speech punctuation.

Although Marcy just met Ra, he still held Marcy's hand on the deck.
"Thank you for honesty as a reward I will help you find your father," whispered Ra. Ra pointed ahead to his sun boat and explained the boat will take them to the sphinx.

Conjunctions and prepositional phrases are used to link events smoothly and build cohesion. Pronouns are used to avoid repetition and build cohesion too. (GP)

"The goddess of night sky will show us the way," said Ra.

"Thank you," squeaked Marcy.

At the end, Ra and Marcy climbed the ship and sailed to the sphinx.

"Here's my left eye, it will guide you through the dark shadows."

When they arrived at the foot of the sphinx, Ra whispered kindly,

"The light will guide you."

"I'm so lucky to have you as a friend," squeaked Marcy.

She climbed the rusty, dusty anchor. As Marcy reached the yellow, shining orb, she took a nervous breath, feeling scared.

Speech is consistently, accurately punctuated with capital letters and end punctuation within the inverted commas. A variety of reporting clauses are also chosen for effect. (GP)

Spelling is mostly accurate throughout the piece. Words from the year 3/4 spelling list have been spelt correctly (although, breath). Punctuation is accurate throughout the piece and the child uses all speech punctuation correctly, including capital letters to begin the speech and end punctuation within the inverted commas. (T)

This biography is written cohesively and concisely. In comparison to the EXP example, the writing is more formal and controlled, taking into account audience and purpose. Ideas are organised well within paragraphs and paragraphs are well structured. This piece also demonstrates the child's skill in varying sentence structure and using different structures skilfully to allow ideas to flow. (C)

Children wrote a biography of Howard Carter based on the text 'The Story of Tutankhamun' by Patricia Cleveland-Peck. During the build up, children practised using conjunctions and possessive apostrophes. They also worked on organising information into appropriate themed paragraphs.

Greatest finds

Carter was amazed by all the amazing artefacts! Carter found a golden throne inside the burial chamber. When the chamber was ~~open~~ opened, Carter was very excited. Carter made sure that all finds were documented and photographed.

Howard Carter's work is still being celebrated today.

Spelling is accurate throughout the piece. Words from the year 3/4 spelling list have been spelt correctly (early, interested, enough). An error in 'opened' has been independently corrected. Punctuation is accurate throughout the piece. (T)

The writing is clearly, cohesively and logically structured. Each paragraph gives detail about one key topic and develops it with relevant details. Use of subordination and pronouns support the 'flow' of the writing, building cohesion and avoiding repetition. They have clear understanding of how to punctuate complex sentences correctly. (C)

Year 4 National Curriculum

Spelling

- use further prefixes and suffixes and understand how to add them (English Appendix 1)
- spell further homophones
- spell words that are often misspelt (English Appendix 1)
- place the possessive apostrophe accurately in words with regular plurals (for example, girls', boys') and in words with irregular plurals (for example, children's)
- use the first two or three letters of a word to check its spelling in a dictionary
- write from memory simple sentences, dictated by the teacher, that include words and punctuation taught so far

Pupils should learn to spell new words correctly and have plenty of practice in spelling them. As in years 1 and 2, pupils should continue to be supported in understanding and applying the concepts of word structure (see English Appendix 2). Pupils need sufficient knowledge of spelling in order to use dictionaries efficiently.

Composition

Plan their writing by:

- discussing writing similar to that which they are planning to write in order to understand and learn from its structure, vocabulary and grammar
- discussing and recording ideas

Draft and write by:

- composing and rehearsing sentences orally (including dialogue), progressively building a varied and rich vocabulary and an increasing range of sentence structures (English Appendix 2)
- organising paragraphs around a theme
- in narratives, creating settings, characters and plot
- in non-narrative material, using simple organisational devices (for example, headings and sub-headings)

Evaluate and edit by:

- assessing the effectiveness of their own and others' writing and suggesting improvements
- proposing changes to grammar and vocabulary to improve consistency, including the accurate use of pronouns in sentences
- proof-read for spelling and punctuation errors
- read aloud their own writing, to a group or the whole class, using appropriate intonation and controlling the tone and volume so that the meaning is clear.

Pupils should continue to have opportunities to write for a range of real purposes and audiences as part of their work across the curriculum. These purposes and audiences should underpin the decisions about the form the writing should take, such as a narrative, an explanation or a description. Pupils should understand, through being shown these, the skills and processes that are essential for writing: that is, thinking aloud to explore and collect ideas, drafting, and re-reading to check their meaning is clear, including doing so as the writing develops. Pupils should be taught to monitor whether their own writing makes sense in the same way that they monitor their reading, checking at different levels.

Year 3: Detail of content to be introduced (statutory requirement)

Word	The grammatical difference between plural and possessive –s Standard English forms for verb inflections instead of local spoken forms (for example, we were instead of we was , or I did instead of I done)
Sentence	Noun phrases expanded by the addition of modifying adjectives, nouns and preposition phrases (e.g. the teacher expanded to: the strict maths teacher with curly hair) Fronted adverbials (for example, Later that day, I heard the bad news.)
Text	Use of paragraphs to organise ideas around a theme Appropriate choice of pronoun or noun within and across sentences to aid cohesion and avoid repetition
Punctuation	Use of inverted commas and other punctuation to indicate direct speech (for example, a comma after the reporting clause; end punctuation within inverted commas: The conductor shouted, "Sit down!") Apostrophes to mark plural possession (for example, the girl's name, the girls' names) Use of commas after fronted adverbials
Terminology for pupils	determiner pronoun, possessive pronoun adverbial

Teaching the Year 3 and 4 POS

By the beginning of year 3, pupils should be able to read books written at an age appropriate interest level. They should be able to read them accurately and at a speed that is sufficient for them to focus on understanding what they read rather than on decoding individual words. They should be able to decode most new words outside their spoken vocabulary, making a good approximation to the word's pronunciation. As their decoding skills become increasingly secure, teaching should be directed more towards developing their vocabulary and the breadth and depth of their reading, making sure that they become independent, fluent and enthusiastic readers who read widely and frequently. They should be developing their understanding and enjoyment of stories, poetry, plays and non-fiction, and learning to read silently. They should also be developing their knowledge and skills in reading non-fiction about a wide range of subjects. They should be learning to justify their views about what they have read: with support at the start of year 3 and increasingly independently by the end of year 4.

Pupils should be able to write down their ideas with a reasonable degree of accuracy and with good sentence punctuation. Teachers should therefore be consolidating pupils' writing skills, their vocabulary, their grasp of sentence structure and their knowledge of linguistic terminology. Teaching them to develop as writers involves teaching them to enhance the effectiveness of what they write as well as increasing their competence. Teachers should make sure that pupils build on what they have learnt, particularly in terms of the range of their writing and the more varied grammar, vocabulary and narrative structures from which they can draw to express their ideas. Pupils should be beginning to understand how writing can be different from speech. Joined handwriting should be the norm; pupils should be able to use it fast enough to keep pace with what they want to say.

Pupils' spelling of common words should be correct, including common exception words and other words that they have learnt (see English Appendix 1). Pupils should spell words as accurately as possible using their phonic knowledge and other knowledge of spelling, such as morphology and etymology.

Most pupils will not need further direct teaching of word reading skills: they are able to decode unfamiliar words accurately, and need very few repeated experiences of this before the word is stored in such a way that they can read it without overt sound-blending. They should demonstrate understanding of figurative language, distinguish shades of meaning among related words and use age-appropriate, academic vocabulary.

As in key stage 1, however, pupils who are still struggling to decode need to be taught to do this urgently through a rigorous and systematic phonics programme so that they catch up rapidly with their peers. If they cannot decode independently and fluently, they will find it increasingly difficult to understand what they read and to write down what they want to say. As far as possible, however, these pupils should follow the year 3 and 4 programme of study in terms of listening to new books, hearing and learning new vocabulary and grammatical structures, and discussing these.

Specific requirements for pupils to discuss what they are learning and to develop their wider skills in spoken language form part of this programme of study. In years 3 and 4, pupils should become more familiar with and confident in using language in a greater variety of situations, for a variety of audiences and purposes, including through drama, formal presentations and debate.

Year 4 LSP KPIs

	Expected Standard	Depth
Composition	Noun phrases expanded by the addition of modifying adjectives, nouns and preposition phrases.	Use precise and effective noun phrases with awareness of impact on the reader.
	Uses rich and varied vocabulary including use of figurative language.	Uses language and vocabulary choices with control to create impact and viewpoint.
	Composing sentences using a range of sentences structures: simple, compound, complex.	Sentence structures are chosen for effect.
	Extend the range of sentences with more than one clause by using a wider range of subordinating conjunctions.	Varies the position of the subordinate clause for effect and variety with accurate punctuation.
	Paragraphs organised around a theme, in most writing.	Use fronted adverbials to develop cohesion between paragraphs.
	Independently proof-reads for punctuation errors (CL . ? ! " , in a list ' for contractions, punctuation for direct speech).	To edit and change vocabulary and punctuation for effect and variety.
	Independently proof-reads for spelling errors.
Vocabulary, Grammar and Punctuation	Punctuate direct speech accurately (including punctuation within and surrounding inverted commas).	Uses a variety of reporting clauses in different positions to add detail and interest.
	In narrative, used direct speech to convey character.	In narrative can combine speech and actions to convey character.
	Use fronted adverbials to show where, when and how with comma mostly accurate	Use carefully selected fronted adverbials to show where, when and how with accuracy
	Uses possessive apostrophe mostly accurately with plural nouns
	Chooses an appropriate pronoun or noun within or across sentences to aid cohesion and avoid repetition.	Chooses an appropriate pronoun or noun within or across sentences to aid cohesion and avoid repetition to have impact on the reader
Handwriting	Most handwriting is legible and joined	Handwriting is legible and joined

Year 4 ARE Exemplification

This diary entry is written effectively using appropriate formality and the pupil writes effectively in role, thinking about a character's emotions.

Past tense is maintained consistently throughout the piece.

Cohesion is mostly built effectively using a variety of sentence types, with a variety of fronted adverbials and fronted subordination used.

The pupil has organised ideas within paragraphs appropriately, demonstrating a shift in time.

(C)

Fronted adverbials are used to build cohesion and are punctuated accurately. GP

The pupil uses rich, varied vocabulary including figurative language.

Noun phrases are expanded by the addition of modifying adjectives, nouns and preposition phrases

(C)

Children wrote a diary entry in role based on the text Matchbox Diary by Paul Fleischman. In the build up to this piece of writing, they planned vocabulary and figurative language carefully to help them to describe. They also practised drafting a variety of sentences types including adverbials and conjunctions.

Dear Diary,

A few weeks ago, we boarded the huge ship that towed over me. As I first stepped onto the ship, a very tall man pushed past me with several grand ladies walking gracefully behind. After a few minutes, I made my way into the lower deck. All the bed were as dirty as a muddy pig and I could hear people being sea-sick as the ship began to move. I felt a pang of sadness that my family had paid all their money for this descraceful place.

The next morning, I heard the waves roar like a lion. As I went outside, I saw men praying. I felt scared that was never a good sign. A couple of hours later, the wind howled like a wolf and the waves danced like a ballerina. The wind wipped our faces, we had to stay inside. All night the boat rocked side to side and I couldn't get to sleep. In the morning, I heard a rich lady scream I went onto the deck to see the biggest wave ever glaring down at us. Before I could move, the waves slapped me and I ran inside. After 3 days of stormy weather we could finally see New York in the distance. "Finally!" we all sighed.

Year 3/4 spelling rules are applied.

The suffix -ly is added to an adjective to form an adverb (gracefully, finally)

Spelling rules from previous years are correctly applied .

The suffixes -ment, -ness, -ful , -less and -ly e.g. sadness (T)

This non-chronological report is written effectively using appropriate formality. Technical vocabulary is used skilfully (passenger ship, operational, hull) and paragraphs are organised accurately around a theme.

Cohesion is successfully built through the use of subordination, fronted adverbials, pronouns and prepositional phrases. Past tense is used consistently throughout, with the exception of a couple of sentences in the middle of piece (e.g. On board, they are on the middle deck.)

(C)

This is a non-chronological report about the Titanic. Children had previously read The Matchbox Diary and used this as a stimulus for their writing before learning more about the Titanic. Children planned the information they would include in each section.

The Titanic

When it set out on its maiden voyage in 1912, the Titanic was the largest and most luxurious passenger ship of its time. Although it was known as the unsinkible ship, it unfortunately never reached its destination.

A long Construction

The Titanic was desinged by The White Star Line Company and was built in Harland and Wolf docks (Belfast). It took $7.5 million to complete the ship. Did you know it was built along it's sister ship? While building the titanic, there were 8 deaths and 20 horses were needed to transport the anchor. They made four funnels but only 3 were operational (The fourth was only for looks). Surprisingly, it was the largest ship ever built! Did you know it took 3000 men to build the Titanic in 2 years and two months?

The Titanic Experience

The first class passengers could afford private cabins, sitting rooms, sports, exetra, exetra. People could get nice food, entertainment and would get the nicest things. The second class passengers could afford nice things but not as nice as the first class. On board, they are on the middle deck. Beneath the surface, rats and viruses live with the third deck, they bearily have anything to do. It was a terrible time. Although, it was the nicest third class ship ever.

Fronted adverbials are used to build cohesion and are punctuated accurately. Prepositional phrases are used to vary sentence openers. (GP)

The pupil uses an extended range of sentences with more than one clause by using a wider range of subordinating conjunctions. (C)

In this second paragraph, there is accurate use of a range of punctuation. Question marks are used accurately for rhetorical questions and there is appropriate use of exclamation marks and brackets. There is an error where the pupil punctuates possessive 'its' with an apposrophe but this is mostly used correctly throughout the piece. (GP)

The Crash

In the following days, 6 ice warnings came through but were all ignored because the Captain was sending passenger messages. Suddenly, the board shook. The crew went down the hull and they saw a huge hole with sea water pouring in. It had hit an iceberg! It was 11.30p, and lots of people were in bed so they took the 1st class woman and children first. As it was sinking, the vessel snapped in two! It took 2 hours and 40 minutes to sink and in that time people risked their lives to save other people. Sadly, most bodies are still unfound.

Use of pronouns to build cohesion. (GP)

Fronted adverbials are used to build cohesion and are punctuated accurately. (GP)

Year 3/4 spelling rules are applied accurately.

-ly suffix added to adjectives to create adverbs (unfortunately, surprisingly)

-tion suffix used correctly (construction, destruction)

Words with the /k/ sound spelt ch (Greek in origin) (anchor)

Words from the Y3/4 spelling list are spelt correctly e.g. minutes, although

There are occasional errors, for example with the homophone error where barely is used instead of barely. The proper noun Titanic is capitalised consistently with one exception. This child uses possessive 'its' mostly accurately, with one error. The child mostly uses possessive 'its' correctly. (T)

A range of features are used to add interest and to create an effective narrative tone.

Descriptive vocabulary is carefully selected and the pupil is beginning to use elements of 'showing not telling' to convey characters' thoughts and feelings.

The pupil writes consistently in past tense and first person.

As well as accurately punctuating speech and using a new line for a new speaker, the pupil is started to develop the narrative and advance the action using dialogue.

(C)

Children wrote a narrative from the perspective of a child travelling on the Titanic. Children practised using different kinds of figurative language to describe the ship. They also revisited using accurate speech punctuation.

It was 10:00pm, and I was in a luxuriouse dinning room. My Mother agreed that I could stay up late so I could enjoy an orchestra. We sat at an imposing wooden table with 'food fit for royalty' Father said. After we'd danced like ballerinas, Mother said in a tired voice "Time to go to bed Milly darling."

"Okay, Mother," I replied politely. I gently got into my grand four-poster bed. As soon as my head touched the comftable pillow I drifted of into a deep slumber.

Suddenly, my bed jolted like a horse wakin waking me up and nearly throwing me out of my bed! I carefully tiptoed to the dore door, when I heard panicky voices outside.

"George we need to get out of here." That was Mother's voice.

"Darling it's only a little bump." That was Father's voice.

"The crew are worried," said Mother in an axiouse voice.

The next thing I new Mother had rushed into my room.

"Milly put on every dress and your favourite leopard print print peti-coat, then follow me and do it quickly." She orderd shakily.

"Mother what's going on?" I asked ergently.

"There is something wrong with the ship and we have to get off imediately," she explained in a worried weise tone.

As I stepped onto the deck, the wind slla-slapped my face. People were screaming and crying like a lost child. Then mother said, "Darling, quick of here your fa Father's waiting for us." Father was standing near a large crane with a boat attacked to it. I felt the ship moveing down underneath my feet. It felt was a volcano waiting to erupt. Mother helped me into the boat and they lowed me down. We were sardines in a pack pack. As we splashed into the water I noticed Father had to stay behind I wonderd why. We started to paddle away as if we were fish in a pond. Mother got pared up with another child who's parents were still on the boat. She had a baby brother and the boatsman explained they were now ours. People were screaming still, and then the most horrible thing happened, the vessel snapped in two as if it were a breadstick! Soon the rescue boat came and we were taken back to our home land.

Speech punctuation is used accurately and to convey character, including implying characters' emotions and moving the action on. (GP)

A range of sentence types are used. In this paragraph, there are examples of compound and complex sentences. (C)

Year 3/4 spelling rules are applied and the pupil proof reads independently for spelling errors, which can be seen where errors are crossed out.

The /N/ sound spelt ou (touched), words with the /k/ sound spelt ch—Greek in origin) (orchestra)

There are some homophone errors through the piece e.g. knew/new and who's/whose. (T)

Children used the picture book 'Journey' as a stimulus for their writing. They completed a series of 'short writes' where they imitated different parts of the story in the build up to writing their own innovated narrative.

This 'short burst' piece of writing allowed the pupil to practise applying skills which they would use in a longer narrative piece. The pupil builds cohesion using different sentence types. Fronted adverbials are used and punctuated accurately and vocabulary is chosen carefully.

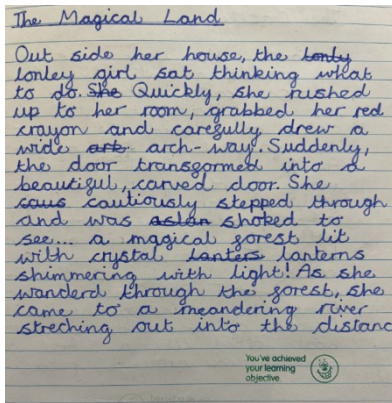

(C)

Fronted adverbials are used to build cohesion and they are accurately punctuated.

The Magical Land

Outside her house, the lonely girl sat thinking what to do. Quickly, she rushed up to her room, grabbed her red crayon and carefully drew a wide arch-way. Suddenly, the door transformed into a beautiful, carved door. She cautiously stepped through and was shoked to see... a magical forest lit with lanterns shimmering with light! As she wandered through the forest, she came to see a meandering river stretching out into the distance.

Rich and varied vocabulary is selected to create interesting expanded noun phrases. (C)

A range of narrative features are used and the pupil builds cohesion in a variety of ways.

Ideas are paragraphed and organised clearly and both sentences and paragraphs are linked using a variety of cohesive devices.

Use of appropriate pronouns avoids repetition and a variety of fronted adverbials and subordinating conjunctions are used to join ideas.

The pupil has independently proof-read and corrected some spelling errors as well as correcting use of first person to third to ensure consistency. (C)

The pupil uses rich, varied vocabulary including figurative language.

Noun phrases are expanded by the addition of modifying adjectives, nouns and prepositional phrases.

(C)

Children innovated their own narrative based on the picture book 'Journey' by Aaron Becker. They had previously completed some writing based on the original story. They then chose which aspects of the story to change and planned their ideas.

Upstairs, a young girl- Milly- hopefully opened the door of her sisters room. Slowly, she peeked round to see if she was there. Sadly, nothing was there but her notebook. Milly ran upstairs with tears in her eyes and fell onto her bed crying. Out of the corner of her eyes, she had spotted a crayon, a bright blue crayon. Cautiously, she drew a round archway. Suddenly, a round handle appeared and she carefully opened the door...

A roar of sound washed over her. Icy mountains with high peaks loomed over her, snow hills with small bunnys surrounded her. In the distance, she could see a huge ice palace. She could see men in huge jackets with colorful nets roaming around the area. Quickly, something with purple spots zoomed past me. A snow leopard cub. Out of breath, the cub slowed down, and swoop the net collided with the cub. Seconds later, the cub was taken away into the trees. Instantly, I drew a blue boat and sailed down the river with led to the castle.

When Milly arrived at the castle it was as beautiful as a model with a purple snowflake at the top. All of a sudden, she heard squealing noises in one of the cells. The snow leopard cub! She had to somehow get her out. Milly had an idea. She crept through the doors, towering doors and wrestled the guards, took one of their keys and opened the cell door. Carefully, she walked up to the petrified animal but before she could say anything she had been lifted onto her back. Her luxury, soft fur had calmed her down a bit. Like lightning, they bolted out of the castle.

Fronted adverbials have been used to show where, when and how with correct use of a comma. (GP)

Year 3/4 spelling rules are applied and the pupil proof reads independently for spelling errors, which can be seen where errors are crossed out.

The suffix -ly is added to an adjective to form an adverb (quickly, suddenly)

Spelling rules from previous years are correctly applied.

Adding -ing, -ed, -er, -est and -y to words of one syllable ending in a single consonant letter after a single vowel letter (grabbed, stepped).

There are occasional errors (shoked, wanderd) but the pupil shows they have a good understanding of how to apply these spelling rules elsewhere in the piece. (T)

Year 3/4 spelling rules are applied.

The /n/ sound spelt ou (young)

Homophones and near-homophones (lightning, breath)

Words from the Y3/4 spelling list are spelt correctly e.g. breath guard

There are occasional errors (opened, bunnys, witch) but the pupil generally shows good application of previously taught spelling rules.

Some errors in spelling have been self-corrected (peeks, there, spotts). (T)

This narrative is cohesively written, using a variety of sentence structures. Sentence structures are chosen for effect, with some shorter sentences included for impact. Dialogue and action are combined to convey character. Vocabulary is carefully chosen to create impact when describing settings and characters. (C)

In the build up to this short narrative, pupils worked on developing dialogue to convey character and selecting descriptive vocabulary. When planning this narrative, they thought about where best to use the ideas they had generated.

As the spectacular longship with an elongated mast elegantly left the tranquil harbour, Beowulf's, steely, eccentric eyes, gazed dreamily out at the dark, glistening shallows of the dock. Behind him, the emotive thanes were busy at their menial jobs. Chiseled Beowulf was strapped in a surplus of warmth due to his homely, sheepskin beanie. "We shall prevail in our stupendous conquest to slay this fatal, frightful fiend!" exclaimed courageous Beowulf, drowning in confidence. He wore a comfortable cotton coat and a distinguished pair of leathery leather boots with a glistening, golden buckle around his waist.

Beowulf's perky perspective suddenly shifted. The roaring storm that had once been a flaky drizzle, was an extortionate thundering battle with nature. A treacherous, choppy ocean pounded the sturdy sides of the longship.

"Storm's pickin' up, better chop-chop," yelled a fearless warrior alerting those inside. "Couldn't tell!" replied the captain sarcastically.

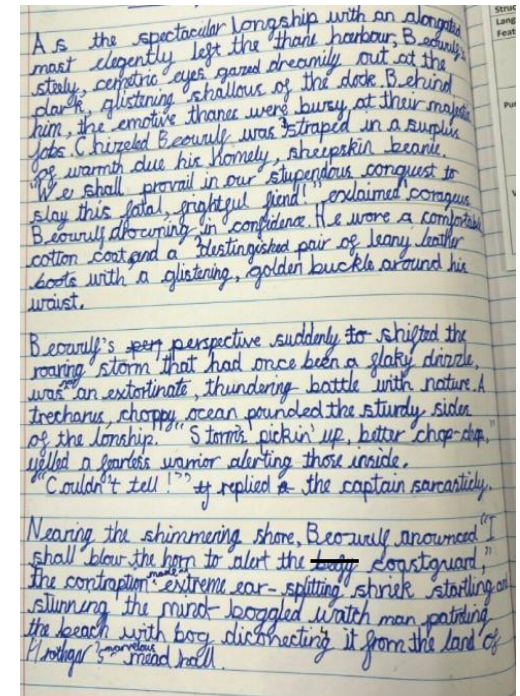

Nearing the shimmering shore, Beowulf announced, "I shall blow the horn to alert the coastguard."

The contraption emitted an extreme ear-splitting shriek, startling and stunning the mind-boggled watchman patrolling the beach with bog, disconnecting it from the land of Hrothgar's marvellous mead hall.

The pupil uses subordination and fronted adverbials to build cohesion within and between paragraphs. (C)

Spelling is accurate throughout the piece. Words from the year 3/4 spelling list have been spelt correctly (extreme). A few mistakes have been made in spelling of more sophisticated vocabulary. Punctuation is accurate throughout the piece. (T)

The pupil has thought carefully about characters' dialogue to convey information about them. They have combined the speech with actions to add extra detail, helping to build a picture in the reader's mind of what the characters are like. (GP)

Pupils wrote a short section of a narrative based on the text 'The Matchbox Diary'. They applied work they had completed in the build up on speech and varying reporting clauses.

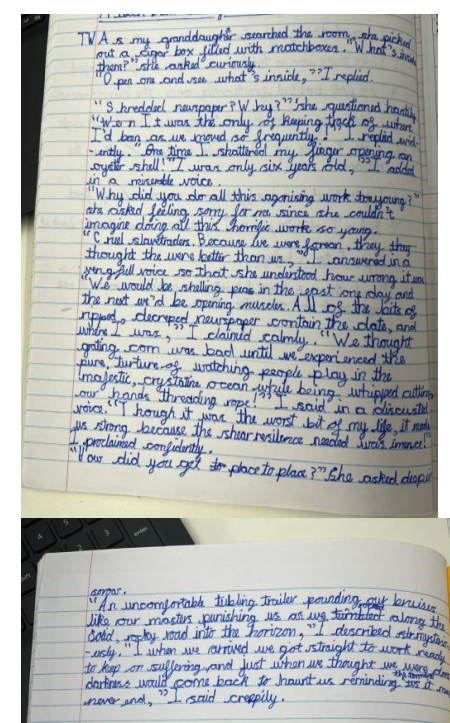

This short narrative provided the pupil with the opportunity to demonstrate use of dialogue in context. Through the conversation, the grandfather recounts his childhood. The pupil skilfully demonstrates all the necessary punctuation for speech and challenged themselves to vary reporting clauses to have impact on the reader. (C)

Vocabulary is carefully chosen to create impact. The pupil has selected vocabulary to convey the character's difficult experience to both the other character in the narrative and the audience. (C)

As my granddaughter searched the room, she picked out a cigar box filled with matchboxes. "What's inside them?" she asked curiously. "Open one and see what's inside," I replied. "Shredded newspaper? Why?" she questioned hastily. "Well—it was the only one keeping track of where I'd been as we moved so frequently!" I replied evidently. "One time I shattered my finger opening an oyster shell! I was only six years old," I added in a miserable voice. "Why did you do all this agonising work too young?" she asked, feeling sorry for me since she couldn't imagine doing all this horrific work so young. "Cruel slave traders. Because we were forean, they thought the were better than us," I answered in a vengfull voice so that she understood how wrong it was. "We would be shelling peas in the east one day and the next we'd be opening muscles. All of the bits of ripped, decreped newspaper contain the date, and where I was," I claimed calmly. "We thought grating corn was bad until we experienced the pure torture of watching people play in the majestic, crystalline ocean while being whipped cutting, our hands shredding rope!" I said in a discusted voice. "Though it was the worst bit of my life, it made us strong because the shear resilience needed was immense!" I proclaimed confidently. "How did you get to place to place?" she asked deep in sorrow. "An uncomfortable tilting trailer pounding our bruises like our masters punishing us as we rocked along the rocky road into the horizon," I described mysteriously. "When we arrived we got straight to work ready to keep on suffering, and just when we thought we were done, darkness would come back to haunt us, reminding us its forever and it may never end," I said creppily.

Spelling is mostly accurate throughout the piece, with errors occurring in more sophisticated vocabulary e.g. decreped- decrepit and forean- foreign. Words from the year 3/4 spelling list have been spelt correctly (answer, question, though). Punctuation is accurate throughout the piece. (T)

A variety of reporting clauses are used to add detail and interest. The pupil is using this variety to engage their reader but, as they become a more sophisticated writer, the pupil will need to develop control over when it is appropriate to use more detail and when it is not necessary. (GP)

Punctuation	Brackets, dashes or commas to indicate parenthesis Use of commas to clarify meaning or avoid ambiguity
Terminology for pupils	modal verb, relative pronoun relative clause parenthesis, bracket, dash cohesion, ambiguity

Teaching the Year 5 and 6 PoS

By the beginning of year 5, pupils should be able to read aloud a wider range of poetry and books written at an age-appropriate interest level with accuracy and at a reasonable speaking pace. They should be able to read most words effortlessly and to work out how to pronounce unfamiliar written words with increasing automaticity. If the pronunciation sounds unfamiliar, they should ask for help in determining both the meaning of the word and how to pronounce it correctly.

They should be able to prepare readings, with appropriate intonation to show their understanding, and should be able to summarise and present a familiar story in their own words. They should be reading widely and frequently, outside as well as in school, for pleasure and information. They should be able to read silently, with good understanding, inferring the meanings of unfamiliar words, and then discuss what they have read.

Pupils should be able to write down their ideas quickly. Their grammar and punctuation should be broadly accurate. Pupils' spelling of most words taught so far should be accurate and they should be able to spell words that they have not yet been taught by using what they have learnt about how spelling works in English.

During years 5 and 6, teachers should continue to emphasise pupils' enjoyment and understanding of language, especially vocabulary, to support their reading and writing. Pupils' knowledge of language, gained from stories, plays, poetry, non-fiction and textbooks, will support their increasing fluency as readers, their facility as writers, and their comprehension. As in years 3 and 4, pupils should be taught to enhance the effectiveness of their writing as well as their competence.

It is essential that pupils whose decoding skills are poor are taught through a rigorous and systematic phonics programme so that they catch up rapidly with their peers in terms of their decoding and spelling. However, as far as possible, these pupils should follow the upper key stage 2 programme of study in terms of listening to books and other writing that they have not come across before, hearing and learning new vocabulary and grammatical structures, and having a chance to talk about all of these.

By the end of year 6, pupils' reading and writing should be sufficiently fluent and effortless for them to manage the general demands of the curriculum in year 7, across all subjects and not just in English, but there will continue to be a need for pupils to learn subject specific vocabulary. They should be able to reflect their understanding of the audience for and purpose of their writing by selecting appropriate vocabulary and grammar. Teachers should prepare pupils for secondary education by ensuring that they can consciously control sentence structure in their writing and understand why sentences are constructed as they are. Pupils should understand nuances in vocabulary choice and age-appropriate, academic vocabulary. This involves consolidation, practice and discussion of language.

Specific requirements for pupils to discuss what they are learning and to develop their wider skills in spoken language form part of this programme of study. In years 5 and 6, pupils' confidence, enjoyment and mastery of language should be extended through public speaking, performance and debate.

Year 5 LSP KPIs

Year 5 ARE Exemplification

This 'short burst' piece is written consistently in first person. This child writes appropriately for their audience, using appropriate informal language and features.
(C)

Children read the text 'Hidden Figures' by Margot Lee Shetterly. Children first wrote job application letters in role using formal language and relative clauses. They then wrote diary entries in role as Dorothy Vaughan, exploring the themes of discrimination and segregation shown in the text. The diary entry required children to demonstrate use of informal language and features such as contractions.

Dear Diary,

Today I started work at the Langley Laboratory, which was an a great achievement. The boss at the NACA was kind but he didn't hesitate when he said that I have to be in the coloured office and not the normal office. As an African-American woman, everywhere I go I always feel judged even on the first day of my job. Today when I went into the lunch hall, which was my first time there, I looked over my ~~shoud~~ shoulder and saw everyone having more fun than me. Why do we have to be separated from white people? It's just so unfair. I know that this job was hard to get and I'm so grateful to have it. I don't want to show them my emotions but I am so angry at this situation. I hope soon that things will start being equal. I can only hope.

Dorothy

Spelling rules from Y3/4 are applied
Endings which sound like /ən/, spelt -tion, -sion, -ssion, -cian
(situation, emotions)
(T)

Relative clauses are used to add extra detail to sentences and these are correctly punctuated in different positions within sentences.
(GP)

Adverbs and conjunctions are used to build cohesion.
(C)

This piece maintains a more formal tone suited to a persuasive speech. Emotive language is carefully selected to influence the reader and shows that the child has kept audience and purpose in mind. Cohesion is built throughout the piece through the use of conjunctions, adverbials and pronouns.
(C)

This speech was written as part of a unit on 'The Village that Vanished' by Ann Grifalconi. Children completed a short burst piece of writing practising the modal verbs they have been learning about before this longer piece. They then developed ideas further with a focus on persuasive features, including emotive language and use of rhetorical questions.

My dear tribe members, we gather today to discuss a critical matter which will decide the survival of our tribe. Without a doubt, this is a terrible problem that non of us can solve. A villainous, evil, wicked enemy is about to take over our lives. They are going to destroy us all!

It is clear that we must act now since these savage slavers want to capture us. Yao-Yao citezens and our survivors to make us caged creatures. The monstrous slavers have already taken hundreds. The local tribe members have been hurred in a matter of months and we have heard blood-curdng screams. If this ever becomes more and more worse, we will have to act now at this second. These horrific, tough, brave men can turn us into caged creatures or even worse starving orphans/ What will our future be without our familys-families?

I propose a plan. I defently belive-definitely believe that we must dissapear disappear by the click of my fingers. I know a safe place since our loyal ancestor spirits, plan because my ancestors whispered it to me when I gently placed my foot into the foggy river. I know a safe place since our loyal ancestor spirits gave me a plan when I gently placed my foot into the foggy river. The time has come to go swiftly and soon where we might be safe. We now have to destroy our homes, stick by stick, stone by stone so that the slavers will never know we lived here. To protect our fragile children, we must act now. Each and every family must take part erosing-crossing the river.

My fellow Yao members, the time has come to take life changing action in order to protect our loved ones and to save our village. It is vital that we act now. These wicked, horrifc slavers will not take our freedom. What would happen if you got captured by slavers?

Carefully selected, emotive adjectives create expanded noun phrases to add detail.
(GP)

Different verb forms, including modal verbs and present perfect tense, are used correctly.
(GP)

Spelling is mostly accurate throughout the piece with a couple of errors e.g. citezens. There are examples of corrections e.g. changing the singular family to families. Year 5/6 spelling rules are applied. Words containing the letter-string ough (tough) Words with 'silent' letters (doubt) Year 3/4 common exception words are spelt correctly e.g. believe (T)

This piece of writing followed a series of more informal diary entries. Children were taught how to write in a more formal tone with the purpose of informing their audience.

Children spent time practising how to accurately create lists and punctuate them with bullet points.

This child has maintained a formal tone throughout and they have kept their audience and purpose in mind throughout.

(C)

Relative clauses are used to add extra detail to sentences in different positions and with correct punctuation. (GP)

Based on the text 'Hidden Figures' by Margot Lee Shetterly, children wrote a job advert for the National Advisory Committee. In the build up to this piece of writing, they practised correctly punctuating bullet pointed lists. This piece was an opportunity for children to write formally for a specific audience and provided them with a clear purpose.

We are the NACA, which stands for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics that is a lot more than space. We are teachers, scientists, writers, engineers and many of other kinds of jobs to reach our goal in life. We make new and improved technology each day to innovate for the future. Our company employs confident people such as scientists, engineers and computers who work hard together with respect. If you like working hard and discovering new technology, NACA is the right company for you! We are changing the world by inventing new space craft to inspire more people. Everyday, we aim to change the world by beating other technology. We allow all kinds of different jobs to make a difference in the world to develop the most airplanes, which helped us win World War 2. We are passionate about inventing a range of new airplanes to make this all possible.

An engineer's role includes many useful duties:

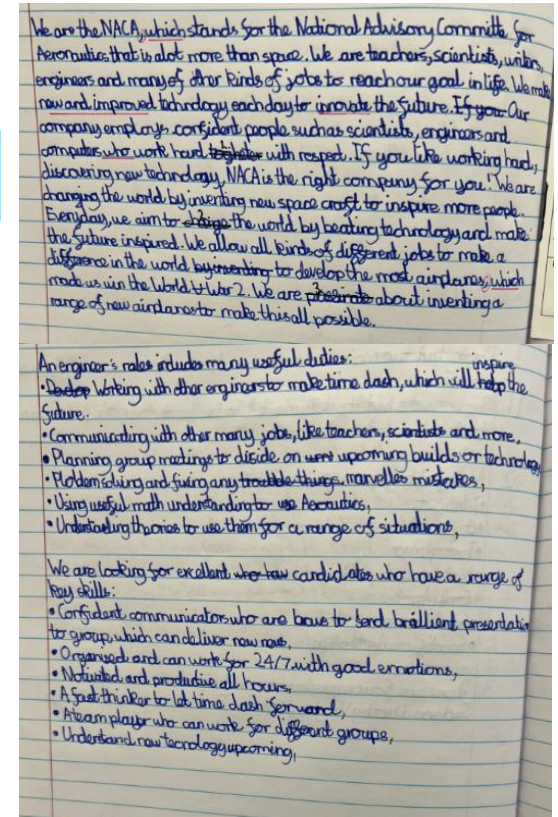

- Working with other engineers
- Communicating with many other jobs, like teachers, scientists and more
- Planning group meetings to decide on upcoming builds or technology
 - Problem solving and fixing marvellous mistakes
 - Using useful math understanding to use in aeronautics
 - Understanding theories to use them for a range of situations

We are looking for excellent candidates who have a range of key skills:

- Confident communicators who are brave to share brilliant presentations
 - Organised
 - Motivated and productive all hours
 - A fast thinker
- A team player who can work for different groups
- Understand new technology upcoming

Children wrote a message in a bottle in role as Caliban based on Shakespeare's 'The Tempest'. They applied their knowledge of parenthesis and using a variety of punctuation for this.

This 'short burst' piece is written consistently in first person. This child writes appropriately for their audience, using appropriate informal language and features.

Conjunctions and pronouns are used to build cohesion throughout the piece.

YOU CAN'T IGNORE THIS LETTER!

I, Caliban, am writing to you in despair. My remote island in the centre of the Mediterranean has been robbed from me. A cunning-undeserving wizard (Prospero) has stole my role as king and taken me for his slave so that I cannot escape his wicked ways. I am all alone. I need your help to get me on the throne again so the island is ruled by its rightful king once more!

As I was saying, Prospero the shrewd sorcerer murdered my mother he did. I just so that he could rule. How selfish is that? The incident left me so inconsolable I wouldn't leave my cave for weeks. I used this time to my advantage though and created a plan that will change everything...

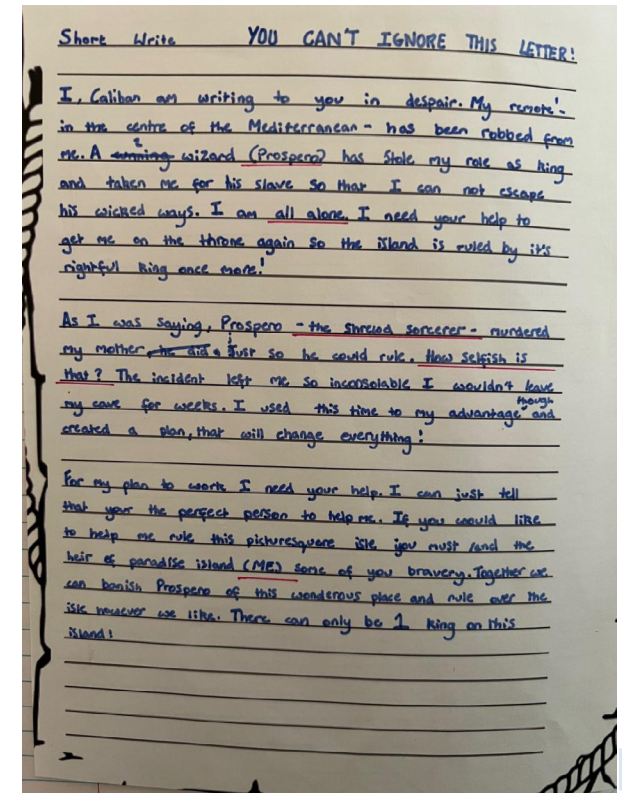

For my plan to work I need your help. I can just tell that you're the perfect person to help me. If you would like to help me rule this picturesque isle you must lend the heir of paradise island (ME!) some of your bravery. Together we can banish Prospero from this wondrous place and rule over this isle however we like. There can only be one king on this island!

Year 5 GDS Exemplification

The writing shows strong awareness of appropriate formality for a narrative adventure genre. The grammar is mostly formal with some natural informal speech that suits the characters.

The pupil shows strong control over vocabulary, crafting an engaging tone and perspective throughout

Descriptive choices like "building tirelessly," "scrambling aboard," "waves as big as rocks," "flying over the azure blue sea" paint vivid scenes and maintain reader interest. (C)

Verb forms are selected for meaning and effect. For example, strong, clear verbs build action and energy e.g. crafted, scrambling. A passive verb is also used appropriately. Past tense is consistently maintained and present or future tense are used accurately within dialogue. (GP)

In the build up to writing the narrative, pupils completed sentence level work on using a variety of cohesive devices to link ideas. Pupils also worked on advancing the action through dialogue, crafting sentences including –ing clauses.

After a disastrous flood, a thoughtful robot named Nav surveyed the devastation of the land. In a panic, he hurried to the city zoo to find the animals crying in the distance and sheltering on high ground. The pandas, that were famished, begged for bamboo. During the day, he tended to the animals and made sure they were fed, which was no mean feat on his own!

Once the animals were fed, Noa planned their escape. Thinking carefully, he began to design a blueprint. While the weather worsened, he knew his time was running out to save the animals. From the jetty, he launched his handmade boats to test out his design.

Eventually, he had no choice so he gathered up the animals. The water, that would not stop rising, sloshed against the rocks. As Noa was bending down, the unsafe animals quickly jumped up onto him. Carefully, he placed the animals onto higher ground.

Noa realised that he and the animals needed to leave now so he gathered lots of materials and started to cut, test and screw them together.

Cohesive devices are used throughout the piece. A variety of sentence structures are used to build cohesion within writing.

Complex and compound sentences are used skilfully and some shorter sentences are used for impact. Relative clauses are used to add extra detail and are punctuated correctly.(C)

- ① delicate delicate delicate delicate delicate
- ② As soon as she had climbed out, with ease, she quietly said, "Hello. Are you stranded?"
- ③ Then she sheepishly questioned Noa, "I've got space for us and the ~~our~~ animals in ~~the~~ this basket if you want some help?"

Building tirelessly, he carefully crafted the hull from old scraps of wood. Day and night, the animals watched Noa work. Noa, working relentlessly, finally added the last touch.

When the vessel was complete, he organised the animals, sat in twos ready to board the ship. Scrambling aboard, they each gathered a space to sit comfortably, on the deck to settle down. Once all animals were accounted for, they set off on their maiden voyage.

During the journey, a sudden storm hit. Waves as big as rocks crashed into the side of the ship, and the wind tore the sails. All Noa and the animals could do was hold on. Finally, the storm stopped and the boat gently washed ashore.

Out of the distance, Noa spotted an outline of something floating through the air. It came closer and closer until out of nowhere a hot air balloon with a purple robot inside floated down to the soggy ground. "Hello," she said. "Are you stranded?" "Yes. Where do you come from?" asked Noa.

"A land far from here," she replied. "I've got space for you and the animals, if you want some help?" she sheepishly questioned Noa.

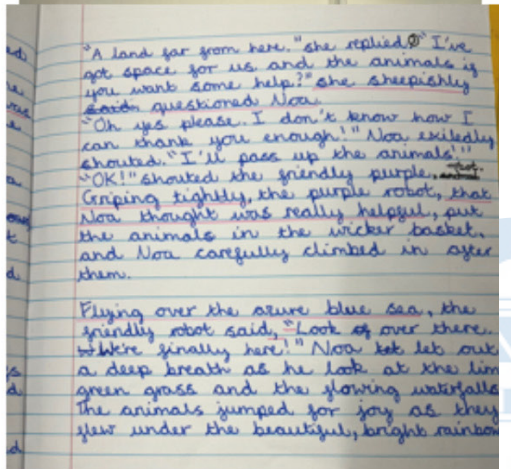

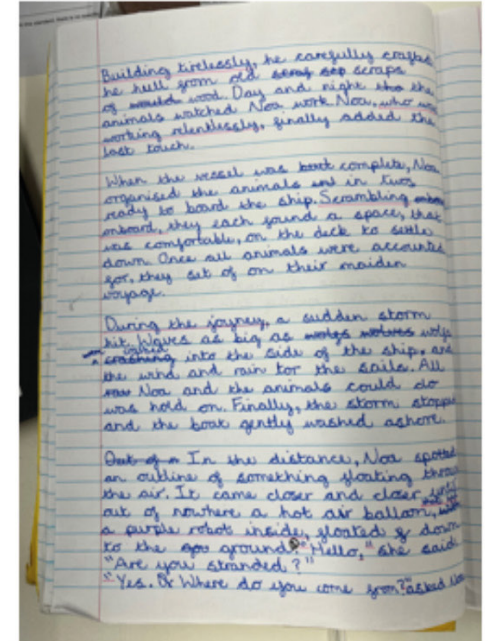

"Oh yes please! I don't know how I can thank you enough!" Noa excitedly shouted, "Come on the animals!"

"OK!" shouted the friendly purple robot. Gripping tightly, the purple robot that Noa thought was really helpful, put the animals in the wicker basket, and Noa carefully climbed in after them.

Flying over the azure blue sea, the friendly robot said, "Look over there, we're finally here!" Noa let out a deep breath as he looked at the lime green grass and the flowing waterfalls. The animals jumped for joy as they flew under the beautiful, bright rainbow.

Spelling is mostly accurate throughout the piece. Punctuation is accurate throughout the piece.

This piece of writing maintains a formal, informative tone throughout. Formal vocabulary is used effectively, for example evidence, appearance, residents, witnesses. The pupil shows strong control over vocabulary, crafting an engaging tone and perspective throughout

A variety of cohesive devices are used skilfully and help to maintain the formal tone. (C)

Precise verbs are carefully chosen for effect, keeping in mind the audience and purpose of the piece of writing. (GP)

Pupils wrote a formal report based on the story The Whale by Ethan and Vita Murrow. In the preceding lessons, pupils practiced using time adverbials to sequence key events and practiced writing a variety of complex sentences. They applied these skills both in sentence level work and in short burst writing.

Fifty years ago, an unsettling newspaper called The Cape Chronicles appeared with the headline:

"A Giant Whale or A Giant Hoax?"

This sudden appearance startled lots of locals who had never heard anything like it, because the only piece of evidence was a blurry photo taken by two children, who were curious about the violent waves.

On the 18th of August 2024, fifty years later, two young residents of Cape Island prepared to prove the so-called sighting correct. On the rough sea, their separate vessels lurched side to side, and their passengers lurched with them as the waves grew worse and worse.

When the storm was too strong, the boat—which was barely holding together in the wind—finally tipped over and plunged the couple into the pitch-black water.

Back on the shore of Cape Island, the young locals stared at their destroyed transport, which had been battered by the storm. The sand they were standing on merely represented their dignity, and with the wind whistling itself like their trouble would never end. But at that moment, amidst the drips of disappointment and tears, a noise could be heard:

Splash.

During the night, that sound happened several times until the boy, who had been soaked by the salty sea spray, finally looked into the distance.

The witness started running towards the watchtower, his partner following behind. When they had climbed up the wooden pole, through their binoculars, a whale's tail came out of the water and into view.

The couple shook hands to signal that they would join forces and ran back to the beach to try to repair their vessel. After quite a bit of fixing and scavenging, the children managed to repair their transport that they would use to have the second sighting.

Back on the waves and excited with their triumph, they snapped two clear photos and collected proof to prove the whale sighting true.

After the second whale sighting, the young locals were jubilant! The next newspaper read: "Giant Spotted!"

What the grandchildren of the past witnesses saw will be remembered...

Spelling is accurate throughout the piece and a wide range of punctuation is demonstrated. (T)

Throughout the piece, the pupil demonstrates skilful use of pronouns (including relative pronouns) to avoid repetition and link ideas. Adverbials and prepositional phrases are used to create interesting and varied sentence structures. Both co-ordinating and subordinating conjunctions are used well to extend sentences and add extra detail. The pupil is adept at manipulating clause structures and punctuates these accordingly. (C)

This piece of writing maintains a formal, informative tone throughout. Subject-specific vocabulary is used effectively, for example mammals, baleen plates, filter. The pupil shows strong control over vocabulary, crafting an engaging tone and perspective throughout

The pupil makes informed choices of cohesive devices throughout the piece and ideas are carefully organised. (C)

Following their work on The Whale, pupils wrote a non-chronological report about blue whales. They looked at the features of non-chronological reports and practised using cohesive devices in short burst writes.

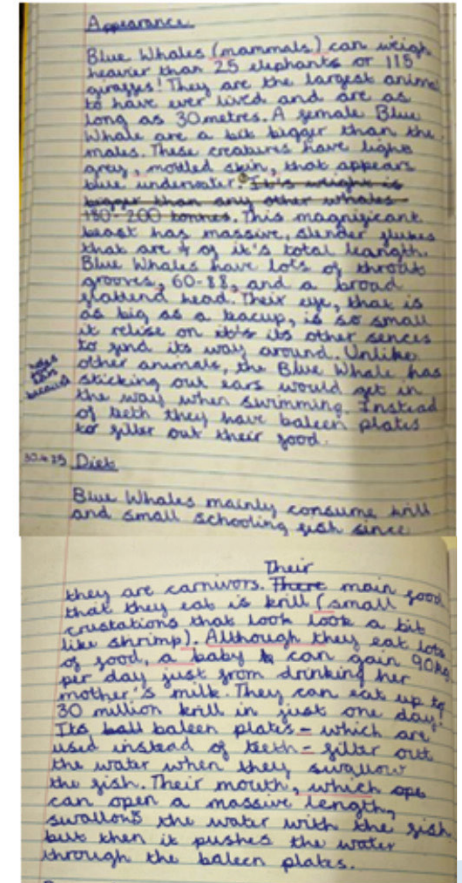

Appearance

Blue Whales (mammals) can weigh heavier than 25 elephants or 115 giraffes. They are the largest animals to have ever lived and are as long as 30 metres. A female Blue Whale are a bit bigger than the males. These creatures have light grey, mottled skin that appears blue underwater. Its weight is bigger than any other whales – up to 180-200 tons. This magnificent beast has massive slender flukes that are a third of its total length. Blue Whales have lots of throat grooves, 60-88, and a broad flattened head. Their eye, that is as big as a teacup, is so small it relies on ~~it's~~ its other senses to find its way around.. Unlike other animals, the Blue Whale has holes for ears because sticking out ears would get in the way when swimming. Instead of teeth they have baleen plates to filter out their food.

Diet

Blue Whales mainly consume krill and small schooling fish since they are carnivores. Their main food that they eat is krill (small crustations that look a bit like shrimp). Although they eat lots of food, a baby can gain 90kg per day just from drinking her mother's milk. They can eat up to 30 million krill in just one day! Its baleen plates which are used instead of teeth- filter out the water when they swallow their fish. Their mouth, which can open to a massive length, swallows the water with the fish but then it pushes the water out through the baleen plates.

Throughout the piece, the pupil demonstrates skilful use of a variety of adverbials, pronouns, conjunctions and preposition to build cohesion. Pronouns and conjunctions are used accurately in different positions to vary sentence structure, adding interest while helping the writing to flow. Relative pronouns are used well in order to add extra information with relative clauses. These clauses are also accurately punctuated. (C)

As well as making corrections while writing, the pupil has thought carefully about how to redraft sections of writing in order to improve it. (C)

- ① Its weight is bigger than any other whales - 180-200 tonnes.
- ② In order that they can breathe air they surface the water

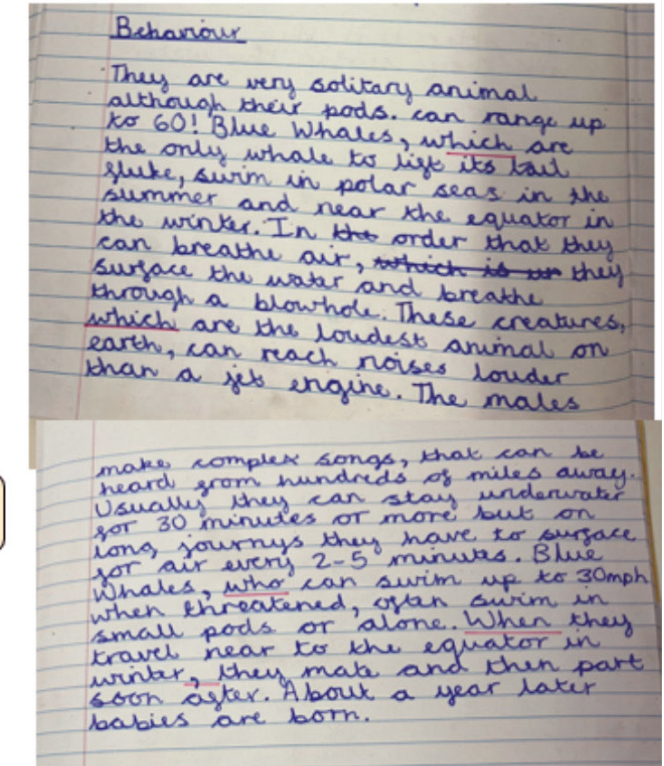

Verbs are well chosen for an informative tone and the pupil also uses an example of a passive verb form. (GP)

Behaviour

They are very solitary animals although their pods can range up to 60! Blue whales, which are the only animal to lift its tail fluke, swim in polar seas in the summer and near the equator in the winter. In order to breathe air, they surface the water and breathe through a blowhole. These creatures, which are the loudest animal on earth, can reach noises even louder than a jet engine! The males make complex songs that can be heard from hundreds of miles away! Usually they can stay underwater for 30 minutes or more but on long journeys they have to surface for air every 2-5 minutes. Blue Whales, who can swim up to 30mph when threatened, often swim in small pods or alone. When they travel near to the equator in winter, they mate and then part soon after. About a year later, babies are born.

Spelling is accurate throughout the piece and a wide range of punctuation is demonstrated. (T)

KS2 TAF

Working towards the expected standard

The pupil can:

- write for a range of purposes
- use paragraphs to organise ideas
- in narratives, describe settings and characters
- in non-narrative writing, use simple devices to structure the writing and support the reader (e.g. headings, sub-headings, bullet points)
- use capital letters, full stops, question marks, commas for lists and apostrophes for contraction mostly correctly
- spell correctly most words from the year 3 / year 4 spelling list, and some words from the year 5 / year 6 spelling list
- write legibly

Working at the expected standard

The pupil can:

- write effectively for a range of purposes and audiences, selecting language that shows good awareness of the reader (e.g. the use of the first person in a diary; direct address in instructions and persuasive writing)
- in narratives, describe settings, characters and atmosphere
- integrate dialogue in narratives to convey character and advance the action
- select vocabulary and grammatical structures that reflect what the writing requires, doing this most appropriately (e.g. using contracted forms in dialogues in narrative; using passive verbs to affect how information is presented; using modal verbs to suggest degrees of possibility)
- use a range of devices to build cohesion (e.g. conjunctions, adverbials of time and place, pronouns, synonyms) within and across paragraphs
- use verb tenses consistently and correctly throughout their writing
- use the range of punctuation taught at key stage 2 most correctly (e.g. inverted commas and other punctuation to indicate direct speech)
- spell correctly most words from the year 5 / year 6 spelling list, and use a dictionary to check the spelling of uncommon or more ambitious vocabulary
- maintain legibility in joined handwriting when writing at speed

Working at greater depth

The pupil can:

- write effectively for a range of purposes and audiences, selecting the appropriate form and drawing independently on what they have read as models for their own writing (e.g. literacy language, characterisation, structure)
- distinguish between the language of speech and writing and choose the appropriate register
- exercise an assured and conscious control over levels of formality, particularly through manipulating grammar and vocabulary to achieve this
- use the range of punctuation taught at key stage 2 correctly (e.g. semi-colons, dashes, colons, hyphens) and, when necessary, use such punctuation precisely to enhance meaning and avoid ambiguity.

(There are no additional statements for spelling or handwriting)

Unlocking Letters and Sounds Progression

The progression used in Unlocking Letters and Sounds largely follows the progression contained in Letters and Sounds 2007, with some modifications based upon:

- a decade of experience of teaching using Letters and Sounds in schools
- feedback from schools who have been trialling the Unlocking Letters and Sounds programme
- refinements and clarifications of learning elements omitted from Letters and Sounds
- updated guidance, including requirements from the National Curriculum

The progression is structured broadly to follow Phases 2 to 5 of Letters and Sounds, but some phases are subdivided into smaller sections, offering structured opportunities for revision ('Mastery') and for spelling development. The phases are organised as follows:

- | | | |
|-------------------|--|---|
| • Phase 2 | • Phase 4 Mastery | • Phase 5b) |
| • Phase 3 | • Phase 4 Revision (including NC Y1 requirements) | • Phase 5c) |
| • Phase 3 Mastery | • Phase 5a) | • Phase 5a) Spellings recap and 5b) Mastery |
| • Phase 4 | • Phase 5a) Mastery (including NC Y1 requirements) | • Phase 5c) Mastery |

- ★ At this point phonics teaching will continue as an intervention for those children who still require it. Year 2 children will move on to learning spelling as per National Curriculum requirements.
- ★ Note: Y1 NC coverage should also be taught within Year 1 English lessons.

Appendix 3: ULS Handwriting Progression

Good handwriting is critical to children's writing progress. It is essential that handwriting is practised until it is fluent and effortless so that the children can put all their effort into thinking about what they are writing.

Handwriting is built into the Unlocking Letters and Sounds digital lessons but it is essential that handwriting is also taught discretely in a progressive sequence to support children to meet the National Curriculum requirements. We recommend regular 10-minute handwriting lessons timetabled across the week. Children need to practise handwriting under the guidance of a teacher so that they do not develop habits or embed misconceptions that are difficult to correct later.

Unlocking Handwriting Progression

Unlocking Handwriting is a whole school handwriting programme. The progression used in Unlocking Handwriting follows the National Curriculum progression, with some additional content included based upon a wealth of experience of teaching handwriting in schools, feedback from schools seeking a comprehensive, progressive handwriting programme and updated guidance (including requirements from the National Curriculum).

The progression is structured broadly in units which are broken down into multiple sessions, offering a clear focus for each discrete handwriting lesson. Similar to the structure of Unlocking Letters and Sounds, Unlocking Handwriting provides 'Mastery' units for children to embed and secure the knowledge they have previously learnt. The programme also provides frequent opportunities for children to revisit previous learning and embed this before further refining their handwriting skills.

The progression is organised as follows:

Year group	Unit	Number of lessons	Focus
Pre-school	1	ongoing	Developing Gross and Fine Motor Skills
	2	ongoing	Pre-Writing Skills

Appendix 4: Glossary of terms

Active Voice

A sentence in which the subject performs the action. Example: The school arranged a visit. (Passive equivalent: A visit was arranged by the school.)

Adjective

Describes or modifies a noun. (see Noun Phrase for extra information)

Typically appears:

- Before a noun (really good work)
- After be as a complement (The work was good)

Adverb

Modifies a verb, adjective, adverb, or a clause. Examples: soon started snoring loudly, really exciting, very often, Fortunately, it didn't rain Not adverbs: up the stairs (preposition phrase), this evening (noun phrase), when the teacher got cross (clause)

Adverbial

Any word or phrase used like an adverb to modify a verb or clause. Examples: in five minutes, last night, until she had finished

Apostrophe

Used for:

1. Omission- missing letters (I'm, won't)
2. Possession (Hannah's book, Justin's car)

Article

A type of determiner:

- The (definite article) Used before a noun to make it specific so that the reader knows exactly which noun is being referred to. Example: The book is on the table. vs A book is on the table. The definite article shows a specific book is being referred to.
- A/An (indefinite article) Example: The dog found a bone.

Clause

A phrase containing a verb. Sometimes clauses can be full sentences (independent or main clauses)

Types include:

- Main: Can stand alone
- Subordinate: Depends on a main clause

Cohesion

Logical flow in a text—how its parts fit together. Example: A visit has been arranged... This is an overnight visit...

There are numerous ways to build cohesion within writing- both within and between paragraphs. See cohesive devices for extra detail.

Cohesive Device

Words that link ideas within a text:

- Pronouns: he, it
- Conjunctions: before
- Adverbs: meanwhile
- Synonyms and word choice
- Consistent verb tense
- Ellipsis: "To school!" (omitting I'm going)

Conjunction

Links words or clauses.

- Coordinating: and, but, or, so, for, nor, yet. A coordinating conjunction is a word that joins two main clauses to form a compound sentence.
- Subordinating: because, when Examples: James bought a bat and ball. Joe can't practise because he's injured.

N.B. The national curriculum states: A sentence may consist of a single clause or it may contain several clauses held together by subordination or co-ordination. Classifying sentences as 'simple', 'complex' or 'compound' can be confusing, because a 'simple' sentence may be complicated, and a 'complex' one may be straightforward. It may therefore be useful to use the terminology 'single clause' and 'multi-clause' sentences alongside this terminology to support pupils' understanding.

Coordination

Joining two equal parts using a coordinating conjunction. Examples: Susan and Amra talked and drank tea. Susan got a bus but Amra walked.

Determiner

Placed before a noun to specify it. Types include:

- Articles: the, a
- Demonstratives: this, those
- Possessives: my, your
- Quantifiers: some, every Examples: the team, Julia's parents, some boys

Digraph

Two letters representing one sound. Examples: ea in each = /i:/, sh in shed = /ʃ/, i-e in line (split digraph)

Fronting / Fronted

Moving a word or phrase to the start of a sentence for emphasis. When writing fronted phrases, we often follow them with a comma. Examples: Before we begin, make sure you've got a pencil.

Grapheme

A letter or group of letters that represents one sound. Examples: t in ten, ph in dolphin

Grapheme–Phoneme Correspondence

The relationship between letters and sounds. Examples: s = /s/ in see, but /z/ in ease

Homonym

Words with the same spelling and pronunciation, but different meanings. Examples: left (direction vs. past of leave), bark (dog vs. tree)

Homophone

Words that sound the same but are spelled differently and mean different things. Examples: hear/here, some/sum

Main Clause (Independent clause)

A standalone clause that contains a subject and verb. A main clause is also called an independent clause because it makes a full sentence on its own. Examples: It was raining. The endangered red squirrel darted up a tree.

Modal Verb

Helps express likelihood, ability, permission, or obligation. Examples: can, might, should, must. Modal verbs do not take suffixes: “he musts” is incorrect.

Morphology

The internal structure of words—how root words and affixes combine. Examples: dog + s = dogs; un + help + ful + ness = unhelpfulness; news + paper = newspaper (compound); boy → boyish

Noun

A word that names a person, place, thing, or idea. Types include:

- Common: boy, day
- Proper: London, Wednesday
- Countable: book, idea
- Non-countable: money, imagination

Noun Phrase

A group of words that contains a noun, along with modifying words for that noun. A simple noun phrase is made up of a determiner and a noun. Examples: the dog, my house, some foxes (n.b. Some grammarians recognise one-word phrases, so that foxes are multiplying would contain the noun foxes acting as the head of the noun phrase foxes.)

Expanded noun phrases give more detail about the noun using modifiers. It is possible to expand a noun phrase by adding words appropriately before and/ or after the noun. It is possible to expand a noun phrase by adding adjectives, prepositional phrases, relative clauses or adverbs.

- The cottage (determiner + noun)
- The old cottage (determiner + adjective + noun)
- The old, beautiful cottage nearby (determiner + adjectives + noun + adverb)
- The old, beautiful cottage with a thatched roof (determiner + adjectives + noun + prepositional phrase)
- The old, beautiful cottage that had a thatched roof (determiner + adjectives + noun + relative clause)

N.B. There is no requirement for an expanded noun phrase to include a specific number of adjectives.

Object

Usually a noun or noun phrase directly receiving the action of the verb. Example: The class built puppets. 'Puppets' is the object of the sentence.

Objects become the subject of a passive verb in a passive sentence Example: Puppets were built by the class.

Passive Voice

A sentence where the subject is acted upon. Example: A visit was arranged by the school. (Active version: The school arranged a visit.)

Past Tense

Verb form expressing past events, imagined situations, or polite requests. Examples: showed, went, had eaten (Irregular example: go → went)
Most verbs take a suffix –ed, to form their past tense, but many commonly-used verbs are irregular

Perfect Tense

Describes a completed action with present or past relevance. Formed with have/has/had + past participle. Examples: has eaten, had downloaded

Phoneme

The smallest distinct unit of sound. Examples: /t/ vs. /k/ in tap vs. cap; /kæt/ (cat)

Phrase

A group of connected words that don't include a subject- verb pairing. This means that we do not usually use these on their own as they do not sound correct or make sense alone. Types:

- Noun phrase- a group of words that act as a noun: her mother
- Preposition phrase- a group of words that act as a preposition: to her mother
- Adverbial phrase – a group of words that modify a verb or clause: with a smiling face

A phrase contrasts with a clause. A clause does contain a subject and verb, and it can convey a complete idea. e.g. The evacuee stood apprehensively on the station platform.

Plural

Indicates more than one noun. Examples: dogs, boxes, mice

Possessive

Shows ownership.

- Apostrophe form: Tariq's book
- Possessive pronoun: mine, his

Prefix

A group of letters added to the beginning of a root word to alter meaning. Examples: overtake, disappear

Preposition

A preposition links a following noun, pronoun or noun phrase to some other word in the sentence. Prepositions often describe locations or directions, but can describe other things, such as relations of time. Words like before or since can act either as prepositions or as conjunctions.

Examples: Tom waved goodbye to Christy. She'll be back from Australia in two weeks. I haven't seen my dog since this morning.

Preposition Phrase

Preposition + noun/pronoun/noun phrase. Examples: He was playing in the park. They tidied up after the party.

A prepositional phrase is a group of words that begin with a preposition and explain the time or place that something happened. They can also explain the cause of an event.

Present Tense

Describes actions happening now or regularly; sometimes the future. Examples: goes, can swim, are coming

Progressive Tense

Shows continuous or ongoing action. Formed with be + present participle (-ing). Examples: is singing, was making, had been practising

Pronoun

Replaces a noun in a sentence. Examples: she, him, it, this, mine Amanda waved to Michael → She waved to him.

Punctuation

Symbols and spacing used to structure writing. Includes: . , ; : ? ! – () “ ” ‘ ’ ...plus capital letters, apostrophes, paragraph breaks, and more
Example: "I'm going out, Usha," Mum said. One key function of punctuation is to indicate sentence boundaries.

Relative Clause

A type of subordinate clause that modifies a noun, typically starting with relative pronouns who, that, which, whose. A relative clause modifies the noun within a sentence, adding more detail. The relative pronoun used refers back to the noun being described. Example: The girl, who had curly hair, jumped up and down. 'who' refers back to the girl.

A relative clause can also be used to add more detail to a whole clause. In this case, the relative pronoun refers back to the whole clause. Example: Tom broke the game, which annoyed Ali. [which refers back to the whole clause]

The relative pronoun 'that' is often omitted. The prize that I won was a book. (that refers back to prize) → The prize I won was a book. (the pronoun that is omitted)

The base form of a word that carries its core meaning. Examples: play (played), fair (unfair), foot + ball = football

Root Word

Morphology breaks words down into root words, which can stand alone, and suffixes or prefixes which can't. A root word forms the basis of a word family, for example the root word 'help' can be combined with prefixes and suffixes to form words such as helpful, unhelpful, helper, helpless.

Sentence

A grammatically complete group of words. Can be a:

- Statement: You are my friend.
- Question: Are you my friend?
- Command: Be my friend!
- Exclamation: What a good friend you are!

A sentence can be single or multi-clause.

Standard English

The formal variety of English used in education and official communication. Examples: Standard – I wasn't doing anything. Non-standard – I done it 'cos they wouldn't do no more work.

Subject

The subject of a verb is normally the noun, noun phrase or pronoun that names the 'do-er' or 'be-er' i.e. the person or thing performing the verb. Examples: Rula's mother went out. Will the children study the animals? That is unclear.

Subjunctive

A verb form used in formal or hypothetical situations. The subjunctive mood is a verb form used in more formal writing, usually to express doubt, possibility, necessity or action that has not yet occurred. It is used to convey a sense of unreality, uncertainty or subjective opinion. The subjunctive mood uses the root form of verbs without any suffixes, no matter if it is written in first, second or third person. Examples: The school requires that all pupils be honest. If Zoë were the class president...

Subordinate Clause

A clause which is subordinate to some other part of the same sentence is a subordinate clause. It is typically introduced by a subordinating conjunction that is part of the clause. It is dependent on a main clause. For example, 'She answered the phone when it rang'. 'When' is the subordinating conjunction and 'when it rang' depends upon the main clause 'She answered the phone' to make sense.

Word Class

Every word belongs to a group called a word class, which shows how it works in a sentence. These are the main word classes in English:

- Noun (name of a thing, person, or place – dog, city)
- Verb (action or state – run, is)
- Adjective (describes a noun – happy, blue)
- Adverb (describes how, when, or where something happens – quickly, now)
- Preposition (shows position or direction – in, on, under)
- Determiner (comes before a noun – the, some, many)
- Pronoun (takes the place of a noun – he, they, it)
- Conjunction (joins words or sentences – and, but, because)

Word Family

A word family is a group of words that are related in meaning and form. They usually share a root word and follow similar patterns.

Example:

- Teach → teacher, teaches, teaching

Modelling and shared writing

Live modelling in writing lessons provides children with an opportunity to see an expert writer at work. By externalising the writing process and thinking aloud, the teacher can demonstrate how to apply the specific skill being taught within the context of the writing. It is essential that this model is pre-planned and consistent across classes in order to ensure all pupils see the same high quality modelling. This will ensure teachers are prepared and confident in what they are delivering and it will ensure clarity for children on how to apply key skills within their writing.

The modelling of writing should be completed 'live' with the teacher demonstrating metacognitive talk to explain their thought process. The model should be handwritten to ensure children can see letters being formed correctly and writing being correctly presented.

To ensure pupils are engaged in the modelling process, cold calling or partner talk linked to a specific skill demonstrated may be a useful way to assess their understanding. Modelled writing does not need to be extensive but limited to one or two sentences in most cases. Longer pre-prepared WAGOLLS may have been shared in previous lessons before completing a longer write. This allows pupils to see the complete piece of writing and what they are aiming for.

Checking for Understanding

During the lesson, teachers will be continually assessing children's understanding through questioning, circulating and engaging pupils. Teachers will also need to target key children with their questioning. During the lesson, the teacher will use the information they have gathered through assessment in order to support pupils who have not yet understood or to challenge those who have secured understanding. Through careful use of questioning, teachers will be able to identify children who need to work with them more closely during an independent writing task.

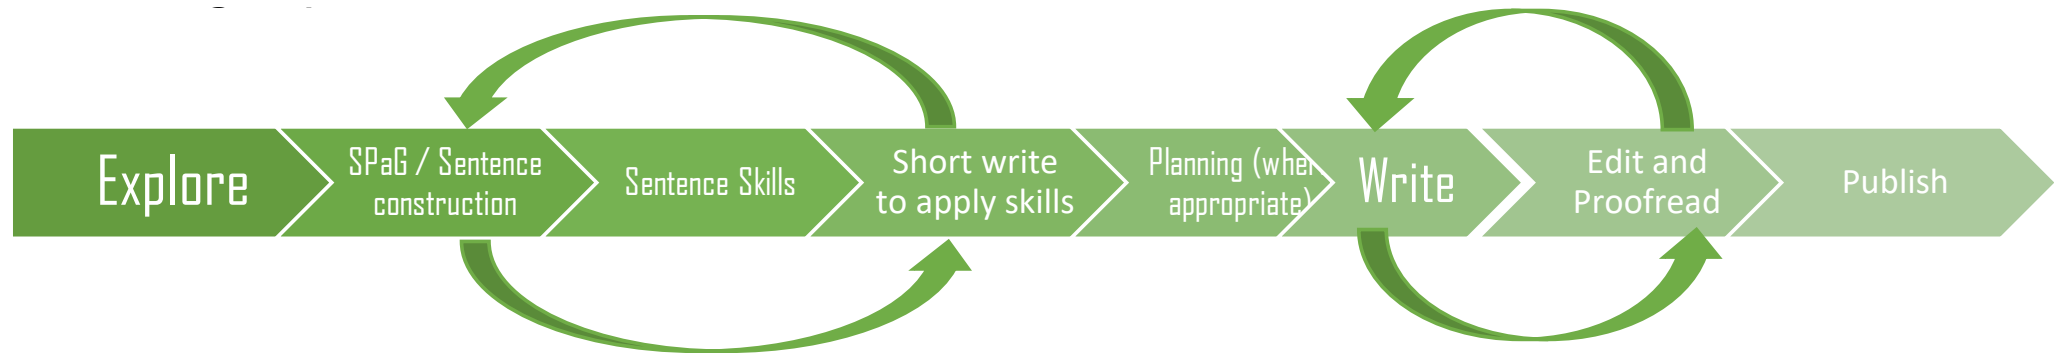

The Writing Sequence - Reception and Year 1

- Learning objective shared and children able to explain purpose of what they are learning within the lesson
- Explicit instruction following small steps of planning unit
- Teacher modelling using carefully planned model in order to demonstrate application of key skills (picking up on children's misconceptions from previous learning where appropriate)
- Teachers modelling correct letter formation according to ULS handwriting scheme and using patterns where appropriate
- WAGOLLS shared during the lesson where appropriate within the lesson sequence
- Teachers picking up on pupils' incorrect letter formation throughout the writing lesson
- Children sat with correct posture and pencil grip
- Adults and children make reference to ULS displays during the input and independent writing
- Teacher or TA working with small guided group of similar attainment in order to scaffold/ support children with their writing
- Verbal feedback given during the lesson with opportunity for children to respond
- Unit assessment sheet filled in with lesson objectives, key assessment questions and pupils needing keep up/ those absent

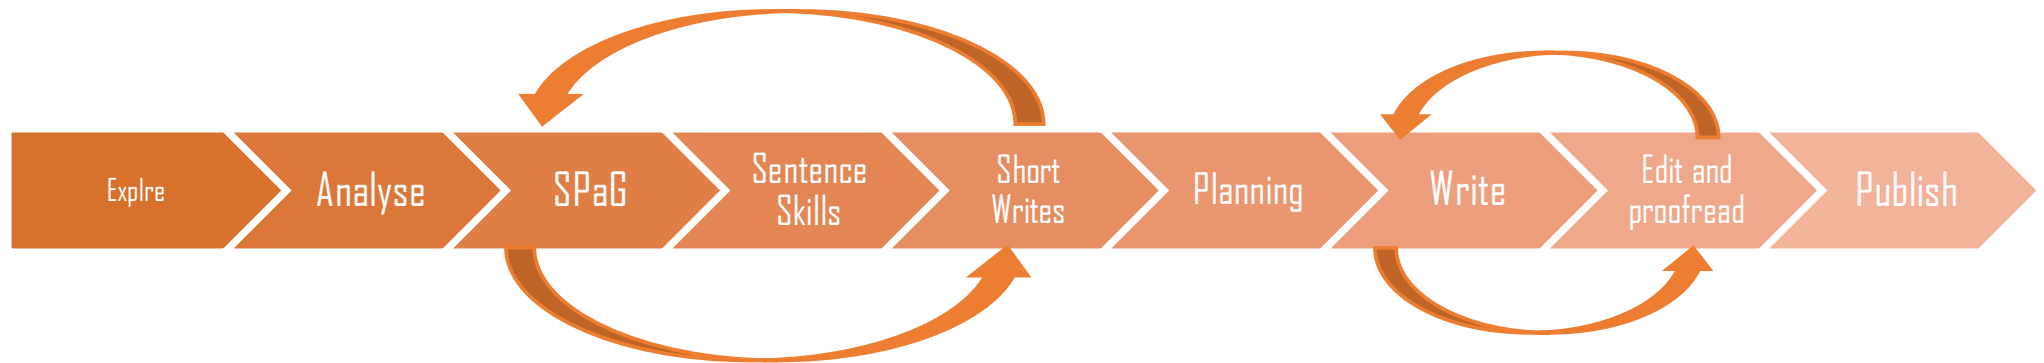

The Writing Sequence - Year2

- Learning objective shared and children able to explain purpose of what they are learning within the lesson
- Explicit instruction following small steps of planning unit
- Teacher modelling using carefully planned model in order to demonstrate application of key skills (picking up on children's misconceptions from previous learning where appropriate)
- Teachers modelling correct letter formation according to ULS handwriting scheme and using patterns where appropriate
- Teachers picking up on pupils' incorrect letter formation throughout the writing lesson
- Children sat with correct posture and pencil grip
- Adults and children make reference to ULS displays during the input and independent writing
- Teacher or TA working with small guided group of similar attainment in order to scaffold/ support children with their writing
- Verbal feedback given during the lesson with opportunity for children to respond
- Writing more at length
- Editing time built into lessons and pupils given time to respond to feedback (children to be able to explain what their next steps are in terms of editing and their learning)
- Unit assessment sheet filled in with lesson objectives, key assessment questions and pupils needing keep up/ those absent

The Writing Sequence - KS2

- Learning objective shared and children able to explain purpose of what they are learning within the lesson
- Explicit instruction following small steps of planning unit
- Teacher modelling using carefully planned model in order to demonstrate application of key skills (picking up on children's misconceptions from previous learning where appropriate)
- Teachers modelling correct letter formation according to ULS handwriting scheme and using patterns where appropriate
- WAGOLLS shared during the lesson where appropriate within the lesson sequence
- Teachers picking up on pupils' incorrect letter formation throughout the writing lesson
- Children sat with correct posture and pencil grip
- Adults and children make reference to spelling rule displays/ writing displays during the input and independent writing
- Teacher or TA working with small guided group of similar attainment in order to scaffold/ support children with their writing
- Verbal feedback given during the lesson with opportunity for children to respond
- Writing more at length
- Editing time built into lessons and pupils given time to respond to feedback (children to be able to explain what their next steps are in terms of editing and their learning)
- Pupils able to edit more extensively and more independently
- Unit assessment sheet filled in with lesson objectives, key assessment questions and pupils needing keep up/ those absent
